Optimism On Phone Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The union leader directing the eight-day-old nationwide telephone strike says chances look good for breaking the deadlock in wage talks.

More than 200,000 members of President Joseph A. Beirne's AFL-CIO Communications Workers union are involved in the walkout in about 40 states, but there has been little effect on most telephone service across the country.

"At this point, I can report definitely that things are looking up," Beirne said Wednesday of continuing informal talks with Bell Telephone System officials.

Beirne said negotiators on both sides now favor abandoning the 18-month wage reopener provision—which set off the first nationwide telephone strike in 21 years—and writing a new three-year agreement.

"Talks have centered on a brand new contractual agreement, to give parties an opportunity to break out of the impasse we had reached prior to the start of the strike," Beirne said in a statement.

The union, before launching the strike of telephone installers, operators, linemen, repairmen, clerks and other workers, rejected a company offer of a 7.5 per cent wage increase over 18 months. The company said at the time the union was demanding 10.5 per cent.

Telephone installers, who set the wage pattern in the industry, averaged $3.27 per hour before the strike and other telephone workers averaged $2.79.

"Chances look good, but there are many knotty problems to resolve," Beirne said of talks with company officials.

Talks originally were confined to wage matters, including pay differentials for various jobs and geographical areas. Discussing a completely new contract adds such matters as pensions, health and life insurance and working conditions to the agenda.

Thousands of Bell workers whose contracts have not expired in those two states and others are refusing to cross picket lines of the union's 23,000-member telephone installers unit, who work in most states. Another 140,000 Bell workers in 15 states where their contracts have expired are also on strike.

Kansas City's Rioting Toll Is $915,000

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Damage to property during recent civil disturbances in Kansas City was estimated at $915,000 by a city inspection team Wednesday.

In a report given to various city officials, the inspection team said damage occurred at 312 locations, mostly in the inner city area which is predominantly Negro. Major fires made up 79 per cent of the damage, according to the report.

The most frequently looted business establishments during the April 8-14 period were liquor stores, taverns and grocery stores.

Fire, health, finance and public works employees of the city comprised the inspection team. Adjusters for private insurance companies also added to the data compiled.

AEC Defends Big Nuclear Test

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission, under pressure from billionaire Howard Hughes to postpone a nuclear test, assured Nevadans today there is little danger from the blast.

But, a day before the countdown started, the Hughes organization renewed its request for a 90-day delay and a group from St. Louis expressed concern over the safety of Hoover Dam. The test is scheduled for 6 a.m. Friday.

The underground test, equal to slightly more than a million tons of TNT, will be the biggest explosion ever set off in the United States and is expected by the AEC to be felt in buildings 250 miles away.

Hearnes To Make It Official; Will File For Second Term

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes planned to file later today for renomination — the first of Missouri's 46 governors eligible to succeed himself.

Hearnes, 44, defeated Republican Ethan Shepley of St. Louis four years ago. This time his major GOP opponent is St. Louis County supervisor Lawrence E. Roos, who filed earlier this week.

In the August primary, both candidates have only nominal opposition.

Hearnes said he felt his administration has made remarkable progress in meeting Missouri's needs.

"I feel that an incumbent governor will be judged in three ways. He will be judged by his legislative record, by his appointments and by his personal and official conduct.

"Missouri has grown industrially and economically and has greatly strengthened itself in the fields of education and mental health during this brief period of time. This is because the admonition by a 17th century author that 'an acre of performance is worth the whole world of promise' has been a keystone of this administration.

"We made specific promises to the people of Missouri, but these promises have been exceeded by the performance. I believe that Missouri would benefit by the continued service of the many capable people within this administration and that is why I intend to seek and to win reelection."

Roos, his prospective opponent, has charged the Hearnes administration with failing to meet its responsibilities, par-

Release Man After a Quiz

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican authorities questioned today a U.S. citizen they said resembles the man wanted on a charge of slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., then released him without pressing any charges.

Daniel David Kennedy of Baltimore, who said he was on a walking tour of the State of Sonora, denied any connection with King's death. An FBI agent, identified only as Mr. Smith, said there was no resemblance between Kennedy and the suspect, James Earl Ray.

But uninvolved party members generally think the best Morton and Miller can hope for are some assurances that favorable and uncommitted delegations will stand fast against a possible blitz at the convention by Nixon forces.

Man's Best Friend, Policeman That Is

DETROIT (AP) — Police investigating a clothing store burglary Wednesday were told the burglar had fled, leaving his dog behind.

They told the animal, "Go home" and followed him to a dwelling where they allegedly found the dog's owner, J. C. Ealey Jr., with some of the loot. Ealey was booked on a breaking and entering charge.

Warsaw Still Goal Of Reds For Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — High administration officials say North Vietnam appears to be mounting a major campaign aimed at getting the United States to accept Warsaw as a site for peace talks.

That was their assessment of Poland's reported appeal to six embassies in Warsaw to exert influence in bringing preliminary peace talks on ending the Vietnam war to the Communist nation's capital.

President Johnson meanwhile was reported prepared to carry on prolonged, hard-nosed negotiations with North Vietnam over the site.

And U.S. officials forecast that the longer the present diplomatic sparring continues the more Johnson will harden his resolve not to give way on this first issue of what they maintain will turn out to be a long and painful peace-making process.

The latest move in the jockeying for position came today in a note from Hanoi, replying to a U.S. note delivered Monday.

Contents of the reply were not disclosed, however, either by the State Department here or by officials in Vientiane, Laos, where U.S. Ambassador William H. Sullivan received the note from the North Vietnamese embassy.

Administration insiders say the Polish pressure for selection of Warsaw—a site already spurned by the United States on the ground Poland is an ally of Hanoi's—points up what they feel is apparent: That North Vietnam regards selection of a site as an issue of substantial importance.

U.S. officials say there seem to be several reasons for this. One is that North Vietnam believes that by manipulating public opinion pressures against the Johnson administration it can force the U.S. to agree to a place agreeable to Hanoi and painful to Washington.

Another reason, U.S. officials believe, is that if the site is unfavorable enough to U.S. interest and disliked enough by South Vietnam the issue may be used to drive a wedge between the Washington and Saigon governments—which is one reason why the White House and State Department have been nervous about the site selection process from the beginning.

A third motivation suggested by American officials is that North Vietnam feels it is important to determine at the outset how much power it can wield—through the successful marshaling of the worldwide desire for ending the war—on a specific issue of peace negotiations such as the problem of selecting a place to begin meeting.

Reliable sources in Warsaw said Wednesday that the Polish government called in envoys of the Soviet Union, Japan, Britain, Canada, France and India and asked them to approach

Washington about agreeing to Warsaw for initial U.S.-North Vietnamese talks.

Johnson administration leaders stuck to their position that the city had to be a neutral place in respect to the war and a site which provided access for U.S. allies in the war, particularly the Saigon government.

South Korea and Thailand.

Among foreign diplomats speculation continued to center on Paris as a compromise city. The situation was such that a change in the stand of either Washington or Hanoi could end the fight and produce agreement almost within a matter of minutes.

South Vietnamese Mount Drive to Cut Red Supplies

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnamese paratroopers have moved close to A Shau Valley to cut off North Vietnamese building up manpower and supplies there for a possible blow at Hue or other northern cities, military spokesman said today.

The U.S. 1st Cavalry Division, in a directive, warned its officers to expect a high level of enemy action, possibly an offensive in late April or early May in the Hue area.

In Saigon, the National Police Directorate told the people the enemy was planning another big attack on the capital.

The south Vietnamese move to positions east of A Shau Valley could be the start of a major allied drive against that North Vietnamese stronghold stretching 25 miles along the border of Laos in the far north.

Allied forces have not ventured into the valley in force in the two years since North Vietnamese troops overran the U.S. Special Forces camp at A Shau and turned the valley into their biggest supply base in South Vietnam.

After round-the-clock pounding of the valley by U.S. B52 bombers, nearly 2,000 South Vietnamese paratroopers launched Operation Lam Son last Friday, but it was not announced until today for security reasons.

A government communique, giving the first report of significant action, said the paratroopers destroyed 10 North Vietnamese three-quarter-ton trucks and seized 330 pounds of dynamite 16 miles southwest of Hue on Highway 547.

North Vietnamese war materials and troops move down the Ho Chi Minh trail through Laos into the A Shau Valley.

Sedalia Police Must Be Part Zoo Keepers

It was beyond the call of normal duty Thursday, but Sedalia police were on the spot when two not-quite-so-usual animals became sick.

The first call at 6:35 a.m. sent the police to the 900 Block of West Morgan, where a sick possum was found. They removed the animal.

Later the police received another call for a sick animal and dispatched the poundmaster. The animal turned out to be a skink. It was removed also.

This Jaycee-sponsored event is the official preliminary to the Miss Missouri Pageant, the next competition for the young lady selected to represent Sedalia for the year.

Eight girls will compete for the Miss Sedalia title. They are Nancy Gray, Pam Mark, Barbara Markmann, Kathy Page, Merrie Strode, Judy Templeton, Carole Turner and Sharon Waterfield.

In front of a set decoration of Main Street, the girls will appear in a Suitcase Parade of Entrants for the first number.

Proclaims May 1 As 'Loyalty Day'

Mayor Ralph Walker has declared May 1 as Loyalty Day in Sedalia.

In his proclamation, the mayor noted he concurs "with our national and state leaders in praising the concept of Loyalty Day, and in active implementation of that special patriotic day."

The mayor urged citizens, schools, churches and business establishments, as well as private citizens, to fly the flag and participate in patriotic activities sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and other organizations.

Fire Destroys Shoe Warehouse

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Shoe Warehouse on South U.S. Highway 65 Wednesday night, and did several thousand dollars damage to the one-story metal building. The fire was discovered shortly before 9:30 p.m. by Mrs. R. B. Christensen and Ray Heineman, security officer, just as they were preparing to leave.

Mrs. Christensen, who with her husband is the owner of the Shoe Warehouse, accompanied by a friend, Mrs. Ruth Johnson, and Heineman, had just left the building when Heineman detected smoke and the fire was discovered.

Mrs. Johnson went to Vic's Package Liquor store next door and had the County Fire Department called from there. The alarm was received at 9:25 p.m.

On arrival, Assistant Chief George E. Brown radioed for Fire Chief R. D. "Bob" Sisemore to assist him and Fireman Sherman Howard. He also requested assistance from Whiteman Air Force Base and the Hughesville Volunteer Fire Department. Fire was at the rear of the store building, but flames had already started spreading toward the front.

When the fire truck ran out of water, Brown attempted to back the truck out and go to a water hydrant behind the Holiday Inn, but the electric brakes locked and a rear axle was snapped in two. Brown then had Deputy Sheriff Don Stratton drive him to the county fire station, where he had hoped to get the Civil Defense truck started, fill the 500-gallon water tank, and return to the fire. But this truck would not start.

In the meantime, one pumper truck with 500 gallons of water and a utility truck of the department arrived on the scene with seven fire fighters, followed by the Hughesville truck with five volunteers. Twice these two trucks went for water before it was decided to lay a 2½-inch hose from the fire plug up the highway. Hose was pulled from the county truck, and between the two departments there was enough to reach the fire. The Whiteman truck parked a short distance away and pumped water on to the fire.

As a result of the lone line of hose, enough water was available to battle the flames, but not before the shoe merchandise had been destroyed. Fire broke through the roof in several places, but was quickly contained, however it spread along the ceiling of the building, burning insulation and wooden portions of the structure. The fire was brought under control shortly after 2 a.m. Thursday.

The Salvation Army arrived about 1 a.m. with a trailer and served the cold and tired fire fighters coffee and doughnuts.

During the fire Deputy Sheriff Stratton requested Ewing's ambulance to come to the scene and stand by in case it was needed. Russell Conn, Jr., Civil Defense director, and several of his men helped fight the fire.

Fire Chief Emmett Vaught and Assistant Chief Willis Jabas went to the scene and gave assistance. Vaught directing the out-of-town fire departments to the fire hydrant on Highway Drive just north of 32nd Street.

Issue of Law and Order Foremost Across Nation

By G. C. THELEN JR.
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's attention is riveted on urban rioting rather than the war or tax issues, some 50 congressmen report in a survey following an Easter vacation among their constituents.

From coast to coast—whether urban, suburban or rural area—the issue of law and order far overrides worries about Vietnam, a tax hike prospect, inflation and government spending, the returning congressmen told a random Associated Press sampling.

"The people are scared," said Rep. Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio. "They want law enforcement and not appeasement," said Rep. Robert L. F. Sikes, D-Fla. "They are disgusted with the repetition of demands for more and more billions to be expended on slum areas as a cure for city problems."

A New England congressman who has supported civil rights and urban aid programs—and who asked not be identified—said: "The red-neck Rotarian crowd in my district shows so little understanding of the racial crisis that I refuse to listen to them."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., reported as much division among whites as between Negroes and whites.

"The little lady with pen in hand who writes and wires my office wants more laws and more money because the white man abused the Negro's grandfathers," he said.

"The man in the street, however, says enforce the law," Aiken continued. "He has nothing to do to say about the rioters."

Rep. J. Edward Roush, D-Ind., said he sensed that the people in his district were determined to combat major domestic problems following the violence ignited after Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated April 4.

"I sense a feeling of sadness in the whole thing," Roush said.

"People are saying, 'What a terrible thing to happen in America.'"

"I believe it's made them more sensitive to the fact there are problems to which we must address ourselves to in America," Roush added.

He said that before King's slaying and the April riots, many people were calling for force to "clamp down on these people. Now I believe they are demanding not repression, but solutions."

But Rep. W. R. Poage, D-Tex., reported an opposite reaction in his district.

"We're headed right toward lynch law if the people can't get protection from public officials," he said.

"Ninety-five per cent of the people are concerned about the violations of the law and the police's failure to enforce the law," Poage said. "The government will either enforce the law or the people will enforce it through vigilantes, and the people don't enforce the law very exactly or discriminately."

"It was very discouraging," said one Northeastern congressman who also asked not to be identified. "The man on the street, in the gas station—who normally doesn't speak out—was saying about Negroes: 'Do they want everything on a silver platter?'"

No congressman among those contacted reported back-home enthusiasm for a proposed income tax increase, but some said they found a new resignation to its necessity. Congress is considering a 10 per cent surcharge on income taxes.

Is Taj Mahal Sinking?

By JOE MCGOWAN JR.
Associated Press Writer
AGRA, India (AP) — The magnificent Taj Mahal, the peerless monument to love which is India's major tourist attraction, may be sinking ever so slowly into the sacred Jumna River.

Mogul Emperor Shah Jahan's memorial to his second wife is in no immediate danger of crumbling but some experts in the Department of Archeology say prompt remedial action is needed.

The Taj first developed cracks in portions of its massive underground foundation several years after its completion, about 1654.

An Englishman, Capt. Joseph Taylor, made repairs in 1810, according to local records. Additional repairs were logged in 1874.

A recent check showed the tilt of the Taj's four minarets has increased, with one leaning nearly nine inches. Cracks in upper reaches of the huge marble dome are reported enlarging as well.

Whatever cracks there may be in the 300-year-old monument, it is still a work of art. Whether viewed at the break of dawn, in the glaring sun of midday or in the sheen of a full moon, the Taj lives up to every expectation of the tourist.

A good portion of the $33.6 million in foreign exchange which India earned from tourists last year must be credited to the Taj.

Special air, rail and bus service is provided from New Delhi to Agra, a distance of 120 miles, and efficient guide service is readily available. Beggars and peddlers are pretty well kept away.

Shah Jahan had the Taj built as a sepulcher for his second—and favorite—wife, Mumtaz Mahal. Exalted of the Palace, She bore 14 of the emperor's children, dying while giving birth to his eighth son, in 1630 while the shah was waging a battle campaign nearby.

The shah invited designs for the monument and finally selected one by Ustad Isa, a Persian.

The emperor brought in skilled craftsmen from France, Italy, Persia and Turkey, and threw 20,000 laborers into the construction. It took about 22 years. One Indian government publication estimates the original cost at $70 million.

A massive base of sandstone was constructed, topped by a marble platform 313 feet square. On it was erected the central mausoleum with an entry archway 90 feet high and a dome 60 feet in diameter.

Slender marble minarets 130 feet tall were built on the platform's four corners.

The entire Koran, Moslem holy book, was transcribed on the outer walls of the Mausoleum, the scrip in black marble inlays. The letters get progressively larger in ascending rows, and to a person standing on the ground they all appear to be the same size.

Two smaller red sandstone mosques flank the mausoleum and a high wall was built around the 42 acres of gardens. There is a three-story gateway on one side; opposite is the Jumna River.

The Taj is symmetry to perfection, with one small flaw. While Mumtaz Mahal's tomb is centered beneath the great dome, the son of Shah Jahan cut costs and did not build another mausoleum for his father. He buried him in a tomb on one side of Mumtaz Mahal's.

Students In A Festival At Concordia

Students from St. Paul's Lutheran Elementary School recently participated in the spring Concordia Talent Festival at St. Paul's College in Concordia. A total of ten Lutheran elementary schools from Missouri competed in music, art, spelling and speech.

In instrumental music, Melody Schreiner, Rebecca Kueck, and Denise Bergmann were awarded blue ribbons, and Linda Deininger received a red ribbon. The music department of St. Paul's Lutheran School is under the leadership of Mrs. Wilma VonStrohe.

The Art Department, headed by Miss Carol Fitz, and the kindergarten classes of Mrs. Bernice Mueller, submitted a variety of entries that received numerous high ratings.

In the spelling contests 20 students competed at each grade level. Rebecca Morrow won fourth place in the fifth and sixth grade competition, and Melissa Morrow took fourth place on the seventh and eighth grade level.

Expect Help By Students For McCarthy

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP)—More than 1,500 Kansas college and university students are expected to help the Nebraska presidential primary campaign of Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., between now and the May 14 election, a McCarthy spokesman said.

"We are counting on Kansas kids to help the canvassing in several southern Nebraska areas near the Kansas border," David Martin, regional coordinator of the senator's campaign, told a Washburn University group Wednesday night.

In addition, he said, "We are counting on other Kansas McCarthy supporters to raise money for this campaign," adding: "All this help is volunteer. There has never been anything like it."

Martin continued, "McCarthy is taking his case to the people, not the bosses, not the ward-healers. And where the people are free to speak, McCarthy is faring very well."

Kill Rates Reflect New Viet Combat

SAIGON (AP) — Fewer U.S. and enemy casualties were recorded in the Vietnam war last week, while the number of South Vietnamese troops killed increased.

The casualty pattern reflected the sporadic fighting across the country, with no sustained ground action but a number of sharp clashes at various points.

In its weekly summary, the U.S. Command said 287 Americans were killed in action last week, compared with 363 a week earlier. There were 1,458 Americans wounded last week, down more than 1,000 from 2,694 the previous week.

Of the wounded last week, 736 required hospitalization.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 380 government troops were killed last week, a sharp rise from 293 a week earlier. The number of wounded last week was 980, a small drop from 985 the previous week. Thirty government troops were reported missing or captured, two less than the week before.

The U.S. and South Vietnamese commands said 1,899 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were killed last week, compared with 3,071 the week before.

Hearing Is in Danger from Tractors

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The farm tractor may produce more crops but can also produce permanent hearing loss for its operator, says a University of Nebraska health and safety expert.

A person exposed to sound pressure levels greater than 85 decibels over an extended time may suffer an appreciable loss of hearing, E. W. Simpson Jr., chief of the university's division of environmental health and safety, said.

He told the Industrial Medical Association's annual meeting Tuesday that tests of 55 tractors showed 97 decibels was the lowest over-all sound pressure level and 114 the highest.

Air Defense Hassle Splits the Pentagon

By BOB HORTON
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force and civilian analysts differ sharply in a Pentagon intelligence dispute already casting a shadow over U.S. plans to defend against Soviet bombers of the 1970s.

Basically at issue is the soundness of a national-level assessment that the Soviets will not develop a supersonic strategic bomber with far-reaching missiles during the next six years.

Gen. John P. McConnell, Air Force chief of staff, thinks they will and argues the United States should build some new 2,000 mile-per-hour interceptors able to shoot them down.

But Robert S. McNamara, just before he left office as secretary of defense, decided indications were that the Soviet bomber threat actually would decline. He rejected the Air Force's requested interceptor, the F12.

Instead, McNamara went along with his civilian planners who figured $1 billion could be saved if the Air Force put a new missile system in an existing fighter, the F106, part of the present air defense network.

Although this plane was developed in the 1950s, cost-effectiveness studies showed that a souped-up version known as the F106X would be just as good as the Mach 3 F12, if a few hundred miles an hour slower.

McNamara also based his thinking on the National Intelligence Estimate (NIE) of what the Soviets might be expected to do in the area of strategic bombers between now and 1976, the period in question.

This projection, drawn up about last October, was that the Soviet Union would stick generally with the strategic bomber force it already has. This includes 155 bombers capable of reaching the United States without refueling.

McConnell, testifying before the Senate Armed Services Committee in February, said, "I don't agree with" and "I don't subscribe to" the NIE view.

The four-star general said he felt the Soviets would indeed put into operation a new supersonic bomber capable of "delivering an extremely long-range, high speed air-to-ground missile" against the United States by 1976.

The F106X would be inadequate to deal with this threat, McConnell declared.

The NIE is a super-secret report which annually sizes up, among other things, the military threat facing this country.

The CIA draws it up each year, using its own information as well as data from the Defense Intelligence Agency, the National Security Agency, the State Department's Bureau of Intelligence and Research and other military and civilian agencies.

A few days ago, the Senate panel—having heard both sides in closed sessions on the defense budget—refused a Pentagon request for $28 million to get the F106X program rolling.

Arnold Brick Oven White Bread. Here's bread with a flavor you have never tasted before. Made with expensive unbleached Spring Wheat flour, whole eggs (which you seldom find in bread), milk, and white clover honey.

This is real bread with all the flavor and protein nourishment you and your family have been missing. It is baked fresh for you every day the way you would bake it if you had the time. Maybe even a little better because we believe its wonderful taste and texture puts it in a class all by itself.

Opening Day For Turkeys In Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The opening day of the wild turkey season in Missouri Wednesday produced 329 big toms for hunters who battled a brisk north wind in most of the state.

Last year's opener, when there were 32 counties in the legal hunting area as compared with 35 this year, registered a kill of 338 birds.

St. Genevieve County topped the list Wednesday with 50 kills. St. Francois had 25, Madison 22 and Iron 21.

In the three new counties, Barry had 1, Osage 2 and Camden 0.

The season runs until Sunday noon. In a seven-day season last year hunters killed 1,191 birds. Sunny and mild weather was the forecast for today.

Laymen Meet In Catholic Conference

ST. LOUIS (AP) — About 100 Roman Catholic laymen met in St. Louis today for the founding conference of the National Committee on Catholic Concerns, a coalition of major Catholic organizations and movements.

The opening session was timed to coincide with the final session of the annual spring meeting of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Delegates to the laymen's conference will conduct a series of small-group sessions during their three-day meeting to discuss problems facing the American church and the adequacy of its response to them and possible redirection of the church's commitment.

The form and goals of the committee will be developed in the final session.

The conference was proposed by a group of St. Louis residents headed by Dr. Thomas P. Neill, professor of history at St. Louis University.

Hearnes

He is in the field of education.

Hearnes, in mid-campaign form, countered in a speech at Joplin last Saturday night Roos was distorting the actual statistics.

Both have promised to "lay it on the line" for the voters during the long, hot summer campaign.

Hearnes is the product of southeastern Missouri politics. His home is at Charleston, where he and his attractive wife Betty, have built a mansion of their own since he became governor in 1964.

Before that he served four years as secretary of state and 10 years in the Missouri House — two terms as majority floor leader. He came to the Legislature in 1950 while still a law student at the University of Missouri.

Before that he was a West Point graduate and a lieutenant in the Army, retiring at the end of 1949.

His ambition from the start of his political career was to be governor and he set out in a business-like way to get the job.

Old school politicians said in 1964 he couldn't win the Democratic nomination because he was running against Lt. Gov. Hilary Bush of Kansas City, choice of the "establishment" in Democratic politics.

Hearnes turned that into a political asset. He charged the party in Missouri had been dominated too long by the "establishment" — a combination of bankers, lawyers and politicians headed by the Central Missouri Trust Co. of Jefferson City, the state's largest depository.

He won over Rush with the benefit of a large vote, campaigning by airplane instead of automobile, then went on to beat Shepley decisively in the general election.

Since then he has had an unusually high percentage of success with his legislative programs, perhaps because of his familiarity with the legislative process.

In 1965 he pushed through the constitutional amendment allowing a governor to succeed himself and also big increases in the school aid, mental health and welfare programs. The same thing happened in the 1967-68 sessions.

Prom Setting Is Evening In Summer

A beautiful, dreamy picture among flowers and a lagoon was the setting of the Junior-Senior Prom held Saturday evening in the Smith-Cotton cafeteria. The theme, "A Midsummer's Night Dream," was revealed by the outdoor scenery depicting a lovely summer evening. In the center of the room a lagoon was placed with a wishing well. The dance floor and ceiling was decorated with bright, colorful streamers and beautiful flowers.

The music for the prom was provided by the Ovaite Brothers, a popular group from Jefferson City. The dance began at 8 p.m. and the band played until 11:30.

Members of junior class decorated for the dance and made the evening possible. Cathy Binderup, junior class president, and Frank Doogs were chairmen of the decorations committee. Others involved in the committee were: Jaynee Rhoads, John Joy, David Salmon, Kent Davis, Cathy Warbitton, Kirk Davis, David Duffield and Chuck Mecum. The junior class sponsor is Verril Martin.

Smith-Cotton Notes

The debate team of Strombom and Lambirth produced a 3-1 winning record in the competition.

Lambirth, qualifying in the extemporaneous speaking division, will participate in the state festival on May 3 in Columbia.

The spring festival in honor of Ceres, goddess of agriculture, will create the atmosphere of the annual Roman banquet of Smith-Cotton High School's Latin Club at 7 p.m. Friday in the school cafeteria. Entertainment for the evening will be provided by several members of the club who will present the comedy "Phormio," one of the greatest plays of Terence, featuring Andy Alexander. Conspiracy Theory By Abernathy

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, who succeeded the slain Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., has raised the question of a possible conspiracy aimed at picking off leaders of the civil rights movement and the Poor People's Campaign.

Abernathy, who launches the Poor People's Campaign next Monday, told newsmen Wednesday that the "forces of evil have sought to defeat our movement and our crusade by killing off our leaders." He enumerated many slain civil rights leaders.

"Now the grave concern at this particular time on my part," he said, "is the fact that there may be a conspiracy taking place in this country to actually defeat our movement, defeat the thrust, by picking off our leaders one by one or three by three, as the case may be."

King was shot to death in Memphis, Tenn., where he was to lead striking garbage workers April 4 in a march. The FBI has charged one James Earl Ray, with criminal conspiracy in the slaying but has not named other alleged conspirators.

Since then, all locks have been changed at Southern Christian Leadership Conference offices in Atlanta and an armed guard posted.

Abernathy succeeded King as president of SCLC and now will lead the Washington campaign which seeks federal programs providing jobs or income for all the poor and unemployed.

The campaign begins May 1 with a mass meeting in Memphis, followed by the placing of a gold star on the motel balcony where King fell mortally wounded and a three-day march from Memphis to Marks, Miss.

Marks is one of the poorest areas of the nation, Abernathy said. It will be the starting point for the southern caravan, including a wagon train loaded with poor families pulling out May 6 for the nation's capital.

Abernathy will drive the first nail May 13 in a shantytown in Washington, the location not yet chosen. Meanwhile, participants will be streaming toward Washington from across the nation, with a huge demonstration set May 30.

Abernathy said he did not object to a march by white persons as suggested by the National Urban League's Whitney Young recently. But, Abernathy said, it would be duplication and he invited any one inclined to march to join the SCLC campaign.

Two Catholic Colleges To Become Coed

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rockhurst College and Avila College jointly announced today the two will become coeducational in September, 1969. The period before that time will be used to study areas of cooperation between the two, both of which were founded just over 50 years ago as private colleges and operated by members of the Roman Catholic Church.

The announcement said one objective of the change was "to broaden and strengthen our educational programs." Both schools have been coeducational in their evening divisions.

The Rev. Maurice E. Van Ackeren, S.J., president of Rockhurst, said each school will retain its separate identity. Rockhurst is one of 28 U.S. colleges and universities operated by the Jesuit order. Rockhurst has an enrollment of 1,014 students in the day college.

Sister Olive Louise, president of Avila, said she expected the move to coeducation to bring larger enrollments to both institutions. Avila has 277 full-time and 130 part-time students. The school is one of five colleges operated by the Sisters of St. Joseph of Carondelet.

The Villa campus is a new one at the south edge of Kansas City.

Taxes By Credit

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Marion County Treasurer John Dobkins has found a way to take some of the pain out of paying taxes. From now until the May 6 deadline, residents can charge their personal property and real estate taxes on an Indianapolis bank's credit card.

Local Woman At An AAUW Board Meeting

Mrs. Virgil Ellis, 2412 Golf, attended a Missouri Division board meeting of the American Association of University Women at Oaks Lodge, Bagnell Dam, April 19-21. Mrs. Ellis is currently area representative for cultural interests at the state level. Plans were made for a Leadership Conference in July. Area Workshops at Springfield and Kirksville, and the Missouri Division Convention April 18-20, 1969.

Also active in Delta Kappa Gamma Society, honorary society for women educators, Mrs. Ellis was honored at the convention in Jefferson City as a member of Delta State Research Committee and incoming president of Nu Chapter. As first president and program chairman of Nu Chapter, Mrs. Ellis implemented the topic "Values, as We Relate to Others" with a double panel which culminated a year's study. Appearing on the panel were four Sedalia young people, Dan Wilson, Dee Ellison, Doug Charles and Cindy Wendt, moderators.

Mrs. Ellis teaches fourth grade at Heber Hunt School.

Will Retire From Armour Sales Post

Loyd Gardner, 152 South Summer, will retire this week as general line salesman for Armour and Company after 25 years of service. Gardner has worked in Sedalia for 21 years and previously worked in Clinton and Nevada for the same company.

He is a member of Wesley Methodist Church and has served on the official church board and taught Sunday School.

Gardner and his wife, Margie, plan to stay in Sedalia, where he hopes to do a lot of fishing and mushroom hunting.

"I think Sedalia is a good place for young men to come and settle," Gardner added.

Note Increase In Employment

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Seasonal factors increased Missouri's non-farm employment from 1,581,100 in February to 1,606,700 in March.

Reporting the figures today, Herman Julien, director of the employment security division, noted that construction, trade and service jobs increased by 4,600.

The March total was 26,808 above March of 1967. The number of unemployed in Missouri is estimated at 5,400 less than a year ago.

Urumchi is the capital and only large city in Sinkiang, a huge China-oriented region adjoining Soviet Central Asia.

Lions Hear Of Local Weather

Weather in Central Missouri was the subject of David Horner, meteorologist in charge of the weather bureau airport station at Columbia, who spoke before the Sedalia Lions Club Wednesday.

In his talk Horner explained the various types of weather, especially the tracking of tornadoes. He told of Pettis, Saline and Livingston counties being on the west boundary of a 11-county area served by the Columbia bureau, which is known as Zone 5.

Horner explained the warnings on storms and how they were issued through the bureau, stating the great part the weather bureau has in the safety of the people of their area. He also explained how Columbia recently held a storm warning signal of the handling of school children and residents in informing them of an approaching possible tornado.

Reviewing Sedalia's system, he explained sirens for the weather warning here are handled through the Sedalia Police Department. When they have received serious warning, and are notified to sound the signals, that will be the time to "take cover."

During his talk he had several slides of tornado funnels in Kansas and especially those which struck Topeka about three years ago. He explained that people who may sight such funnels should notify the police departments which are in direct contact with the weather bureau, and a closer check can be made by the bureau through fine instruments at their disposal.

The speaker was introduced by John Ellison, program chairman.

Don Buller, vice-president, presided over the meeting in the absence of President Addison Taylor, who is recuperating from a recent accident, recuperating from a recent accident.

A guest at the meeting was Marvin M. Anderson, Kansas City, with John Mais.

'Deadpan' Laughs

Comedian Bob Hope succeeds in getting a laugh out of TV's famous deadpan, Ed Sullivan, as they got together in New York to receive their George Foster Peabody Awards, given annually for outstanding achievement in radio and television. Hope received an award in the Radio-Television Special category while Sullivan received the Television Special Award. (UPI)

Safeguard Against Smut Mail

Mail patrons offended by pandering advertisements can now take steps to curb such mail. Postmaster Maurice Hogan said today in announcing plans for administering a new law which gives each family the right to decide that an advertisement received in the mail is "erotically arousing or sexually provocative."

When such an advertisement sent through the mails is offensive on these grounds, a postal patron can now ask the post office to direct the mailer to send no more mail to him and to remove immediately the patron's name from all mailing lists he owns, controls or rents, according to Hogan.

To assist patrons, the Post Office Department has published a brief pamphlet "How You Can Curb Pandering Advertisements" which is available at the main office stamp window of the Sedalia post office. In addition to explaining how the law works, the pocket-size leaflet contains a form letter one can use when sending his complaint to the post office.

The pamphlet explains that when a patron receives an advertisement which is, in his opinion, pandering, he must send the ad, its envelope and the form letter, or one which includes its language, to his post office with the words, "Request for prohibitory order" on the face of the envelope.

Postmaster Hogan said, "This new law should give some protection to American families offended by advertisements they believe to be morally harmful, particularly to their children."

He added that "because the new law gives a mail patron the sole right to decide what is offensive, and does not deny others the right to receive the same mail, the Congress felt it does not violate Constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech."

If after following the above procedure the mailer does not strike a complainant's name from his mailing list, and he receives a second such mailing 30 days after the firm has received the prohibitory order, he may bring the matter to the attention of the postmaster issuing the original order by writing him and enclosing the second pandering ad with its envelope. If the mailer still fails to respect the order, the postmaster general may ask the attorney general to apply for a federal court order directing compliance. Failure to observe the order may be punishable by a fine or by imprisonment.

Secretaries Appreciated This Week

April 21-27 is National Secretaries Week, which originated in 1952 by the National Secretaries Association (International). Wednesday of the week was also set aside as Secretaries Day. Mrs. Mary Alvis, secretary to Don Feedback, Administrator of Bothwell Hospital and Mrs. Mary Kay Hunter, secretary to Roger Garlich, director of the Children's Therapy Center, are members of the National Secretaries Association.

Mrs. Alvis and Mrs. Hunter are currently setting up a planning meeting for the establishment of a National Secretaries Association chapter in Sedalia. The purpose of the association is educational as well as social and has also established the CPS program. A yearly examination would be given and those passing it would have the title of Certified Professional Secretaries. At present there are 3,901 secretaries with this title.

Another program of the association is the establishment of Future Secretaries Association chapters in local high schools and colleges.

The National Secretaries Association was founded in 1942 and by the end of 1966, its membership exceeded 25,000. Membership is extended to those who have had secretaries training, at least two years of secretarial experience and who are actively engaged as full time secretaries, or as part time secretaries not engaged in other employment.

Any qualifying secretary who is interested in a chapter in Sedalia may contact either Mrs. Alvis or Mrs. Hunter.

Mrs. Alvis and Mrs. Hunter attended a banquet this past weekend given by the Show Me Chapter, NSA, of Jefferson City, along with members from Columbia and Springfield, in observance of National Secretaries Week. James C. Kirkpatrick, Secretary of State, was guest speaker at the banquet.

Dismissed From Methodist Post

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Robert G. Mayfield, formerly of Lebanon, Mo., has been dismissed as general secretary of the general board of lay activities of the United Methodist Church.

Mayfield, 55, now of Wilmette, Ill., had held the post 16 years.

The board said in a statement "the work of laymen in the church has increased in stature" under Dr. Mayfield's leadership, but that the work had "not always achieved its full potential," partly "due to a lack of executive leadership."

Light Touch in LBJ Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, as he makes duty calls around the nation following his dramatic withdrawal from the 1968 election, is proving to be a most tantalizing non-candidate.

Johnson made his first post-announcement political appearance at a Chicago gathering Wednesday night and, for a self-declared "lame duck" managed to sneak suspense into his speech.

The thrust of the chief executive's remarks at a Democratic-sponsored fund-raising dinner, was yet another appeal for national unity and a declaration that in the November balloting, perhaps, more than ever in the past, "we shall be choosing our future—and the future of our children."

Then, in an addition to his prepared text, he said:

"There are mothers and fathers in every land—and I am one of those fathers and she (Mrs. Johnson, who accompanied him) is one of those mothers—who despise war as their children despise it."

"I will devote all my days, all my powers and all my energies to winning the peace that is the prayer of every single American family."

But for all the philosophical seriousness of his address, Johnson seemed to titillate his cheering audience most with teasing additions to his prepared text.

Right at the start, he remarked that his reception had led him to suspect for a fleeting moment that he had leaped ahead in time to another meeting in Chicago—to the Democratic National Convention that will be held there in August.

"But then," he continued, "I remembered who I was—the President and not the vice president."

As he paused, there was a new burst of cheering from partisans who appeared to think Johnson had chosen that moment to endorse a personal choice for the Democratic presidential nomination.

But this was not to be. Johnson added he was "President and not the vice president—or a member of the Senate."

Cheers dissolved into laughter.

Again, as he closed his remarks, Johnson volunteered that he had been prompted to make "a complete reassessment of my personal situation."

His listeners straightened in their hard-backed chairs and newsmen reached for notebooks. But they relaxed when, instead of any dramatic announcement, he merely added that he meant he still felt compelled to honor Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's longstanding invitation to speak at the city's annual Democratic banquet. Johnson's drop-in visit ostensibly was a big surprise since the White House announced the trip only a short time before his departure from Washington. It was evident, however, that the surprise was well planned. At each place setting in the banquet hall was a fat program, obviously printed well in advance, proclaiming that the address of the evening would be delivered personally by Johnson.

Last Cavalry Horse Lives On in Luxury

FT. RILEY, Kan. (AP)—Old Chief's days of luxury are stretching on and on at Ft. Riley.

Illnesses may slow down the 36-year-old last surviving Army cavalry horse but so far he's weathered them.

Last week Chief had an attack of colic and went through what his handler, termed "a pretty rough time."

But, says Spec. 5 Ronald Haley, who has taken care of Chief for 5½ months, "he's doing much better now. He's eating, walking and standing much better. But he sure had me worried last week."

As Haley spoke, the former cavalry mount was out in a pasture doing what he's been doing since 1953—taking it easy.

Haley said Chief is alert and has a good appetite for a horse his age, which veterinarians say is equal to 108 human years.

Chief has lost about 150 pounds since the first of the year when he came down with acute arthritis, Haley reported. Since then he's also had three attacks of colic and went off his feed each time.

Foaled in 1932 near Scottsbluff, Neb., Chief arrived at Ft. Riley in 1941 and served in both the 10th and 9th Cavalry before he was retired 15 years ago.

The last of the many cavalry horses that saw service before reorganization, he will remain on the Army rolls until his death—eating, loafing and getting attention.

The attention comes from both military personnel and visitors. Many dignitaries and visiting groups are taken to see the old horse.

Haley, Chief's 26-year-old handler, was born on a ranch south of Colorado City, Tex. A veteran of Vietnam service with the 1st Cavalry Division, Air Mobile, he's been in service three years.

'Recruiting' Worked

WASHINGTON (AP) — When federal troops rolled into Washington during the early April riots the Metropolitan Police Department dispatched its recruiting van to bivouac areas in search of potential police officers.

Among the soldiers of the 82nd Airborne Division and the 503rd Military Police Battalion, 74 were persuaded to take the police examination and 65 of these achieved a passing grade and are being processed for jobs, officials reported.

Big selling points, police officials said, were the prospect of release from military service 90 days early for police work and legislation now before Congress which would set an $8,000 starting salary.

Attorney General's Power Is Limited

By DON NORFLEET
Jefferson City News-Tribune
For The Associated Press
JEFFERSON CITY (AP) —
"Dear Mr. Attorney General:
Please give me your opinion on whether I can collect damages against my landlord for not living up to his promises."

This is an example of the hundreds of letters Atty. Gen.
Norman H. Anderson receives each year from persons who apparently believe his office is required to provide free legal advice.

When Anderson was elected in 1964, he inherited one of the most misunderstood offices in the state.

The attorney general has no authority under the law to issue an official opinion to an ordinary citizen. A mayor or city official doesn't qualify. Even uninformed city attorneys have been known to ask for opinions.

By law, the attorney general can issue his official opinion only to members of the General Assembly, the governor, secretary of state, state auditor, state treasurer, commissioner of education, director of revenue, the head of any state department, division, bureau, commission or agency, or any circuit or prosecuting attorney.

Many citizens believe his powers are much vaster than they really are.

Some apparently confuse his office with the United States attorney general.

The U.S. attorney general supervises the FBI, U.S. district attorneys and federal marshals
throughout the United States.

But Missouri's attorney general has no authority over the state highway patrol, sheriffs,
police or prosecutors.

Many irate citizens falsely believe Anderson has the power to file criminal charges against persons.

"One of the greatest misconceptions," Anderson says, "is the belief that our office can file or force a county prosecutor to file criminal charges against someone."

The attorney general has no power to prosecute organized crime. But he can start outstanding proceedings against a prosecutor for gross malfeasance in office.

Under his limited power, he can act only under civil statute, even under the newly enacted consumer fraud law.

However, the fraud law does provide a misdemeanor penalty
if a suspected business falsifies or destroys records the attorney general asks to see.

Anderson can assist a local prosecutor only if the prosecutor asks the governor for assistance.

The attorney general represents the state in felony appeals to the state Supreme Court and extradition proceedings. He institutes all civil suits necessary to protect the state's rights, interests and claims.

He serves on several state boards, and his office provides legal advice to state agencies.

His official legal opinions are just that—opinions. They carry no force of law. But Anderson says state officials follow his opinions "99 per cent of the time."

"They are on shaky legal ground if they don't follow their official legal advice and are later sued," Anderson explained.

Often the attorney general finds himself in an unpopular position because the constitution or the law says one thing and political pressure prefers another interpretation.

"We just interpret the law the way it is and forget that," says Anderson.

One example came last year when the attorney general ruled the General Assembly could not get their salaries increased during their current term.

Not only does the attorney general find some of his opinions are unpopular, but also some of them go unheeded.

For example, an official opinion issued recently says it is illegal to sell imitation butter labeled "margarine." The law requires the word "oleomargarine."

A check of several opinions in recent years points up the need for changes in state laws:

"It's illegal under state law for private vehicles to use hazard warning lights that are now standard equipment on all new cars. The device causes all four directional signal lights to flash at the same time to warn other drivers of an emergency."

Federal law requires new cars to be sold with the device and state law prohibits its use.

Missouri law says it's illegal for a white person to marry a Negro or an Oriental. Anderson has ruled this law unconstitutional under terms of a U. S.
Supreme Court decision. But the state law is still on the books.

The state constitution still requires that "separate schools shall be provided for white and colored children."

A check through all opinions issued in recent years shows many of them involve lotteries, nepotism, county school superintendents, taxes, absentee ballots and other election laws, city authority under state laws
and the meaning of words.

One reason it sometimes takes five to six months to get an opinion from the attorney general is the painstaking research and review procedure.

First, researchers check to see if a previous opinion is applicable. If not, then federal and state constitutions and laws are studied.

Case law research—the most difficult and time consuming—is done in the Missouri Supreme Court library, one of the best in the United States.

The researchers' opinion is reviewed by a board in the office. Then it goes to the chief reviewer, C.B. Burns. Then, finally, to Anderson. At any stage along the line it can be sent back for more research if disagreement in the office develops.

"We're extremely careful in our research because we know the state relies heavily on us.
And our opinions can last for years," Anderson says.

The General Assembly approved legislation this year permitting six new full time assistants.

"This will speed up the process and we hope to be able to issue opinions in no longer than 30 to 45 days," Anderson says.

But he notes only half the assistants have been hired so far because of low salaries.

His office received from 500 to 600 official requests for opinions each year, and the list is growing. So far, 295 have been received this year. Copies of official opinions are available free to any citizen.

The entire office has an increased workload. One of the little known facts is that the attorney general was responsible for collecting $1 million in delinquent taxes this year.

Another responsibility is the new consumer fraud law. Under the direction of Asst. Atty. Gen.
Brick Storts III, the division has recovered $100,000 from swindlers and distributed it to victims since the law went into effect less than a year ago.

More money and men probably will be needed for this division next year, Storts says.

To add to the problems, Anderson recently received a letter from a young man who wanted to avoid the draft.

"I guess he got me mixed up with the adjutant general," Anderson groaned.

Landmark Ruling On Criminal Trials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A landmark decision upholding the right of the public and the press to attend criminal trials has been handed down by the California Court of Appeal.

The 40-page opinion directs Ventura County Superior Court Judge Marvin H. Lewis to make public all portions of a murder trial conducted in secret.

The trial of William Anthony Clinger, 24, accused of fatally stabbing a Ventura, Calif., bartender, was declared a mistrial
Tuesday night when the jury failed to reach a verdict.

The appellate court's decision
earlier Tuesday said Judge Lewis, in trying to protect the rights of the defendant, had departed from trial procedure prescribed by common law and statute. Public trial, the court held, is "a basic tenet of our legal heritage."

Prior to 1871, over 400 treaties were negotiated with Indian tribes.

Root of the Problem

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Traffic backed up more than a mile at a problem entrance to the Interstate 80 in East Salt Lake City Tuesday. Highway patrol officers sent to untangle the jam found crews from the State Highway Department handing out questionnaires asking motorists for suggestions for better service.

Belvoir, Va., and the other four to the Pentagon.

Although American officers accept the women soldiers readily, some of the 97 foreign students in the college don't quite know how to treat them.

"They're always asking 'What do I call you?'" said Lt. Col. Thompson.

College instructors have nothing but praise for their female warriors.

"The gals become sort of den mothers to their class," said Lt. Col. Jacques Bernier, who teaches joint combined and special operations. "The guys are very loyal to them."

"I don't even give it any consideration any longer that there's a woman in the class," said Lt. Col. Robert M. Clenaghan of the command department. "She's just another student."

Lt. Col. Hugh H. Johnson, who teaches larger unit operations, summed up by conferring upon the six women the highest accolade one soldier could give another.

"These girls," he said, "are professionals."

Tough Training Welcomed

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP)—On June 7 more than 1,200 elite officers will march across a stage on this venerable Army post and receiver certificates denoting their graduation from one of the toughest schools in the military.

Six of them will be wearing skirts.

The six women—five WACs and one Army nurse—will be the first ever to complete the full 10-month course at the Army Command and General Staff College.

How does it feel to be a female surrounded by men who outnumber you by more than 200 to 1?

"It's great," grinned Maj. Marilyn J. Russell. "Odds like that are hard to come by."

The light remark by Maj. Russell, an exuberant WAC from Salt Lake City, typifies the attitude of the six women. They're all career soldiers with overseas experience, and they play it cool.

Other feminine members of the class are Lt. Col. Nancy M. Hopfenspirger of Delmar, N.Y.; Lt. Col. Martha J. Thompson of Iowa City, Iowa; Lt. Col. Kitt M. MacMichael of Pittsburgh; Lt. Col. Inez L. Nease of Geneva, N.Y., and Lt. Col. Doris S. Frazier of Malden, Mo.—the latter the college's only member of the Army Nurse Corps.

Until last year women of the military service attended the college's 18-week associate course offered mainly for reservists, National Guard officers and others.

But with abolishment of the short term, the Army faced the decision whether to subject females to the rigorous full course. The brass decided to try it, and both the Pentagon and the girls are happy with the results.

"It all came as quite a shock to me when they told me I was coming here," said Lt. Col. Frazier, a tall brunette who had been serving as a hospital operating room supervisor.

The fact some of the college's courses deal with weapons and large-scale tactics—something which none of them had any experience—doesn't rattle them.

"In fact, I was told since we didn't have any background in tactics, it would be easier for us because we didn't have anything to unlearn," related Lt. Col. Thompson.

"That was very reassuring."

Smiled Lt. Col. Frazier:

"I didn't have any doubts I could make it, but I didn't plan on leading the class, either."

Lt. Col. Nease said male members of the class go out of their way to help them with their studies.

"The instructors are great, too," said Lt. Col. MacMichael.

"They even come back and check out their jokes with us before they tell them in class."

The women take the same studies as the men—concentrating on such complex topics as combat service support, joint planning, management leadership and logistics.

In addition each of them takes an elective course in a field in which she is interested.

Lt. Col. Thompson and Maj. Russell are taking personnel management. Lt. Col. Hopfenspirger military history. Lt. Col. MacMichael advanced logistics. Lt. Col. Nease French and Lt. Col. Frazier research and systems analysis.

Along with the men, they take their turn receiving "blue goose" assignments in which they command a class section on a tactical problem.

"The men work harder when they know we're the leader," joked Lt. Col. Hopfenspirger, adding with a wry smile:

"Me, I always draw a job like leading the airborne troops in some invasion."

Although the women usually are cast in classroom roles far beyond their own experience, academic fate occasionally deals them a familiar hand.

Better Family Living

In some homes, it's more efficient and practical to locate the laundry center adjacent to the kitchen or bath. Unless a kitchen is quite spacious, a laundry center in the kitchen isn't always the ideal solution, because of possible conflicts between meal preparation and laundry chores. But step-saving results when the laundry center is near the kitchen.

A large bathroom may accommodate a laundry area very well. This is a work-saving location because most laundry collects here and storage closets and drawers for finished washables are nearby. Plumbing connections are easier too when laundry centers are located near kitchens and bath.

A convenient laundry center may usually be created at one end of the recreation or family room. If desired, folding doors can conceal the area when it isn't in use.

This arrangement usually works very well because the laundry may be done during the day when other members of the family are at work or school. And mother can keep an eye on smaller children at play in the recreation room while she does the laundry.

Wash Electric Blankets

Before you put your electric blanket to "bed" for the summer, remember that all manufacturers agree on this basic rule: Washing is the only safe way to keep electric bedding clean. In fact, it should be laundered often, before soil becomes imbedded in the fibers.

When automatic blankets first came out, the idea of washing was not easy to accept, but women gradually lost their timidity about putting anything electrical into the suds. If you are about to launder your first electric blanket, heed these simple rules:

First, disconnect the control and shake the blanket to remove dust. Second, scrub soiled bindings lightly with a sudsy soft brush and pre-treat any stains that same way. Next, soak the entire blanket in cool suds for about ten minutes. Then put it into clean suds—as warm as for a baby's bath. Wash and rinse it at the same temperature, using an adequate amount of soap or detergent and plenty of water.

Avoid prolonged machine agitation or tumbling. Instructions usually suggest not more than three minutes of machine action. A short spin cycle will remove most of the water, and any remaining moisture can be gently pressed out by hand; never put an electric blanket through a wringer.

For hand-washing, use a bathtub which is large enough to immerse even a double blanket without crowding. Observe the same rules as to water temperature. Instead of rubbing, use a plunger's plunger to "suck" the suds through the fabric. This loosens soil and eliminates lifting and squeezing the blanket.

Manufacturers recommend draping an electric blanket over two parallel lines to dry, straightening the edges and corners. And remember this: electric blankets are permanently moth-proofed during manufacture and must not be given further anti-moth treatment.

Baking Tips

Use standard measuring cups and spoons and level measurements. There is no need to rub the baking sheet with fat unless the recipe indicates it should. Be sure to use a sharp knife when cutting refrigerator cookies. This will help to cut uniform slices with even, uncrumpled edges. Always use a straight, even baking sheet that is not too large to prevent circulation of air within the oven. Invert deep-sided shiny pans if you need extra baking sheets. Remember the softer the dough, the more tender the produce. This means the less flour on the board for rolling and cutting the better. Watch cookies carefully.

Watson Is Given Unanimous Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — W. Marvin Watson, White House appointments secretary and a long-time political aide to President Johnson, has won unopposed Senate confirmation as postmaster general.

Watson, a 44-year-old Texan, succeeds Lawrence F. O'Brien, who resigned from the Cabinet to aid Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The Senate approved Johnson's nomination of Watson Tuesday following a hearing by the Post Office Committee.

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — The script for a two-hour movie only runs to about 140 pages.

Held in the hand and carelessly thumbled through, it doesn't look very impressive. It isn't even printed in living color.

But it can literally be worth thousands of times its weight in gold. For in the film industry a script is something like a blueprint of Ft. Knox, since the outcome of a multimillion-dollar production may depend upon whether the words upon its pages have impact.

"You have to be honest in picture making for a change," said Peter Stone, "and that is confusing to a lot of people who have never tried to be honest."

One of the newer word wizards in the industry, Peter scored big with his first film script, "Charade," and he and cowriter Frank Tarloff won Oscars with a second try, "Father Goose."

Stone teamed up with Tarloff again to write "The Secret War of Harry Frigg," and since then he has batted out "Sweet Charity" and "Skin Game."

For a fellow only 38 that's setting a fast pace.

Honesty in Films Is Confusing to Writers

Practically born into the industry—he's the son of the late Jack Stone, a top producer-writer—Peter took a master's degree at Yale, then lived 10 years in France while he served his apprenticeship grinding out scores of television tales. He won an Emmy Award for his work on "The Defender" series, and has written a couple of Broadway musicals.

Stone spends up to six months plotting a script, only six weeks composing the dialogue, and prefers to do his actual writing away from Hollywood.

"There's an old saying about writers—no one ever got better after he went to Hollywood, so you'd better be good before you go there I think it's true.

"Hollywood isn't a bad place, but the people who go there are trying to escape reality. That's why the whole country seems to be flocking there—to get away from cold weather, slums, and other realities.

"But a writer can't afford to do that. He has to keep in touch with reality. If he gets away from reality, he's dead."

A man with positive and sometimes controversial ideas about his medium, Peter believes the film business has changed radically.

"You can still make salami pictures that get by," he admitted. "But stars alone don't guarantee success anymore, nor does subject matter alone."

"The only thing that connects is when you strike a chord of recognition in the 16 to 25-year age group—not the bobby soxers or the dropouts but the young people who don't watch television because they are more interested in life, who are committed and aware."

Peter has a higher opinion of European than most American directors.

"Too many of our directors are only one-dimensional craftsmen. They are too intrigued with the camera alone. Very few want to spend time working with the writer on the script, because it cuts down on the number of films they can make."

Concedes To Negro Students

BOSTON (AP) — A sit-in by some 300 Negro students behind chained doors at Boston University has ended with a promise by President Arland F. Christ-Janer to increase the number of Negro students and teachers and to offer a course in Afro-American history.

A 12-hour demonstration in which the students took over the administration building was halted Wednesday night after Christ-Janer made a point-by-point reply promising to work for most of their demands.

The university president agreed that the planned Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. chair of social ethics should be reserved for a Negro professor, that 10 recently established King scholarships be designated for Negro graduate students and that "every effort will be made to recruit Negro scholars at every professional rank."

The demands were made by the university's Afro-American students society, known as UMOJA, a word meaning "unity" in Swahili.

On only one point did Christ-Janer express less than complete agreement. This was the students' proposal that the School of Theology building be named for Dr. King, a 1955 graduate of the school.

He did say that "every effort will be exerted to admit up to 100 Negro students to the freshman class in the fall of 1968, under some financial aid plan based on need." He added that the university "is prepared to expand its enrollment at all levels for the academic year 1968-69 to include an additional 100 qualified Negro students not needing financial assistance."

The dean of students, Staton R. Curtis, said there are 14,000 students in the university and 900 to 1,000 faculty members. He said the number of Negroes in either group is unknown because such information is not included on records.

Handbags for Men?

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — The jokes about what a lady carries in her pocketbook will probably stop. People may quit pointing out that women control the pursestrings of the nation.

Handbags are now also being made for men. Manbags, they are called.

You may not recognize your male friends, though. If he is shy, he may chose a style disguised as a camera case dangling from his shoulder. On the other hand, a bolder man may make no pretense about his two-tone, canvas shoulder-strapped, everything holder.

Besides canvas, the manbags also are made of rugged elephant hide. "I was very careful not to use anything that smacked of a woman's handbag design," said Sam Smith, a gray-eyed North Carolinian who created them for the 90-year-old H. Margolin Co.

The tall man in a black snugly-fitted Nehru suit had just test piloted a canvas and brass shoulder bag a dozen blocks down Fifth Avenue.

Smith believes these are natural progression in the menswear revolution that started a short time ago with turtle-necks. "With suits fitting close to the body and with pockets disappearing, a man has to have something else for his belonging to keep from looking like he's smuggling grapefruit."

European men already have accepted the handbags-for-men idea and Smith says it is only a matter of time before American men adopt it, too. Several New York specialty stores already have stocked a sizable supply as Father's Day gifts.

Accidental Chuckles

The National Safety Council, whom we usually hear from in connection with dismal statistics of deaths and injuries, gleefully reports a lighter side to the accident picture in 1967

Consider the shock of a locomotive engineer in Dimmocks Cote, England, when a strange, frantic face peered in his windshield. The train had smashed into a truck at a grade crossing 300 yards back, wrapping the truck's cab around the front of the engine. The driver, only slightly injured, had climbed up onto the engine.

Then there was the woman in Moline, Ill., who tried to help a neighbor push a small foreign car. She jammed her big toe into the tailpipe. Firemen cut her loose from the car but it required doctors at a hospital to free her toe from the pipe.

Another lady in Rockford, Ill., rammed into a car ahead of her. Her attention had been distracted by a third wrecked car displayed on the courthouse lawn as a safedriving reminder.

And how about the 8-year-old kid in Rock Hills, S. C., who had the unique experience of being struck by a falling meteorite and surviving? Seems he tripped and fell against his teacher's desk at school, jarring off a sample fragment of meteorite which bounced off his noggin.

Finally, there was the middle-aged gentleman in Friedrichshafen, Germany, who, gazing open-mouthed at a passing mini-skirted beauty, was abruptly brought back to reality by the sound of his false teeth splashing into the waters of Lake Constance.

Favor Auto To Hit You

If you have a choice between being hit by a golf ball and being hit by an automobile, pick the automobile (all other things being equal, if that's possible).

A study of verdicts in personal injury suits by Jury Verdict Research, Inc., of Cleveland, Ohio, indicates that juries apparently feel that anyone indulging in a sport does so at his own risk.

They are more inclined to favor the defendant (the one who caused the injury) in such cases, since less than half the injured parties recover a money award.

Least favored are golfers and baseball players. Only about one out of five of these win their suits. Water skiers, swimmers, bowlers and horseback riders have a somewhat better chance.

But in any kind of sport accident, the research group found, awards are generally less than for a similar injury suffered in a traffic accident.

Ominous Overtunes in Berlin Riots

—Rostow's Role—

On April 19 Pearson and Anderson reported that the chief official who is trying to throw a monkey wrench in the Hanoi peace talks is presidential assistant Walt Rostow. They gave details.

Next day the New York Times carried a front-page story regarding a split in the administration over the Hanoi peace move in which it reported that "Walt W. Rostow, the President's special adviser on national security matters, is convinced of the need to take 'a hard line' and apparently persuaded President Johnson."

By DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — There are some ominous comparisons between the student riots in Berlin and the racial riots in the United States. Though the causes are not the same, the overtones are identical. They add up to the fact that when there is a breakdown in law and order it leads to a breakdown in government, eventually to revolution.

In the days of the Weimar Republic, during that period following Germany's defeat in World War I, there were burnings and violence by the right directed against the left. Such left-wing revolutionaries as Rosa Luxemburg and Karl Liebknecht were killed, and Walter Rathenau, a moderate, was shot. Eventually violence became a way of life in Germany and led to the Nazi takeover.

Today the violence taking place in Germany is from the left. Its origin, however, is not as important as the fact that a relatively small group of students is determined to make violence the order of the day, just as a small group of Negroes in the United States is making violence the order of the day.

In Hitler's day the Communist advocates of violence quickly became Nazi advocates of violence. It was a simple matter for the Communist party to merge into the Nazi party. Their principles of force and totalitarianism were the same.

Likewise in America, force and violence exercised by the Negro minority could lead to a revival of the Ku Klux Klan and Fascist terrorism by members of the white majority.

—Attack on Free Press—

Recently in Berlin more than 2,000 left-wing students have been rioting against the West German newspapers of Axel Springer on the trumped-up charge that the Springer newspapers inspired the attack on their leader Rudi Dutschke, a follower of Mao Tse Tung, who was shot by a Nazi sympathizer, Joseph Bachmann.

The Springer newspapers happen to be the backbone of a moderate, free-enterprise, Democratic West Germany. Axel Springer, their publisher, has been a staunch defender of the Jews. In recognition of his championship of religious and racial tolerance, he was given an honorary degree by Brandeis University in Boston.

Die Welt, the New York Times of West Germany, was actually founded by the British Army

Farmers Will Be Hard Hit If U.S. Restricts Imports

By BRUCE BISSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

While riot and war have taken the nation's attention, it has been edging toward a new economic isolationism which could plunge it into bitter combat over world trade and damage particularly its export market for farm products.

If Congress should yield before even just a few of the many import quotas proposed in such fields as textiles, dairy items, shoes, glass, electronic goods, oil, steel and other metals, the prospect would be prompt, severe retaliatory tariff moves by countries which today import large amounts of U.S. products.

Though some agricultural commodity groups are pushing the new protectionism, the fact is U.S. farmers generally stand to be very hard hit if Congress throws up quota barriers and they are matched abroad.

Farm exports come to nearly $7 billion a year and could rise to $10 billion or more by 1980. Tariff reductions abroad, planned under the Kennedy round of tariff negotiations, could come to 25 per cent on farm items and provide a big U.S. export boost.

With the U.S. farmer a numerically diminishing political force, all too little appreciation is being shown for his increasing dependence upon export markets. But the figures are astonishing.

More than 60 per cent of U.S. wheat is shipped abroad, some 50 per cent of its soybeans, 50 per cent of rice output, 35 per cent of its corn, almost a third of its tobacco, a fifth of cotton and barley.

Markets overseas for these products have more than doubled in volume and value in the last dozen years.

In Kansas, North Dakota and Montana, some 30 per cent of total farm income is ascribed to exports. Illinois, Indiana and North Carolina draw a fourth of their farm income from overseas sales. Texas, Ohio, Washington, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and South Carolina find exports accounting for a fifth of such income.

Some largely industrial states nevertheless realize big returns from farm commodities. In dollar terms, Illinois, for instance, is the country's biggest farm exporter—$666 million in 1967. California and Texas stand even with $485 million each.

Some 78 million acres, about one-quarter of the nation's harvested acreage, today are, in effect, set aside for foreign outlets. Should even just some of those outlets be closed off, many U.S. farmers—and their regions—would be in serious trouble.

The National Planning Association's Agriculture Committee sees the situation in very dark perspective on a worldwide plane. In a recent report, it said:

"The tightening of present quotas could lead us down a road of retreat from the important gains we have made during the reciprocal trade era of the last 33 years.

"In these three decades, the United States has consistently worked to broaden the opportunities for international commerce . . . lowering world trade barriers has led to . . . economic growth, and . . . has supported a rising level of consumption among (major trading) nations."

The battle, of course, is not over. On May 7 in Washington a new co-ordinating council of Organizations of International Trade Policy holds a conference to fortify opposition to the new protective wave. But the staggering thing is the force the wave has developed with so little public notice.

The opening event of each national bridge championship is a nationwide charity game in which players all over the country play the same hands. These hands are predealt by computer and, since each player is competing against his own group, the top score for the country is likely to go anywhere and usually does go to some small town.

This does not mean that the hands aren't tests of expert skill. Board No. 7 found East-West vulnerable and North-South not vulnerable, with West invariably starting with a spade pre-empt. When West started with four spades, North would double for business. South would leave the reasonable in and, assuming West would make his own eight tricks and go down two for minus 500. He would be unhappy, because 500 is more than the value of a nonvulnerable game, but it would not be a total loss.

The bidding in the box shows how a mere three-spade opening by West leads to a diamond slam by South.

West will open the king of spades and, while South won't like his slam contract, he should make it.

The play isn't really very complicated. He must win the spade lead and play a trump. West will show out and South will have to decide to end-play West if he wants to make his contract. The end play develops if South plays dummy's ace and king of hearts and times the whole play so that he will ruff two of dummy's hearts and eventually play out all dummy's trumps in order to wind up with the jack of spades and ace-deuce of clubs in dummy and three clubs to the queen in his own hand.

West will be down to the queen of spades and king-jack of clubs, and South will throw West in with the king of spades. West will have to lead a club and South will make his slam.

Two Dogwood Trees

Two dogwood trees in lovely spring attire
Stand near the street for people to admire.
Nearly 15 feet, they really are a sight
To all who see them such a rare delight:
The dogwood trees, these are Missouri's own,
No prettier tree in all the world is grown,
The dogwood with four rounding petals, noticed Around which is a bit of color spotted.
The dogwood is a symbol, so some say,
A symbol of that crucifixion day,
The dogwood which Missourians hold dear,
Bouquet of flowers before the leaves appear.
The dogwood all through the state
Burst forth in April like it cannot wait.
But these two trees, so beautiful and tall
Just seem to be the loveliest of them all.

Governors Can't Agree on Choice

By WALTER R. MEARS

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic governors have affirmed what their Republican counterparts had been proving for 18 months: Apparent political power and the ability to use it are two different things.

The 26 Republican governors and the 24 Democrats have been unable to create consensus among themselves on a presidential nominee for their respective parties.

The Democrats talked about it in St. Louis April 15 and got nowhere. Republicans chose more fashionable retreats for their disagreement—White Springs, W. Va., Jackson Hole, Wyo., Palm Beach, Fla.

There are individual commitments to candidates in each party, but no one has welded a governors' bloc of major benefit to a single candidate.

It's possible many governors can't exercise total control over their national delegations.

Democrat Harold Hughes of Iowa acknowledged this difficulty. Hughes, a Senate candidate, said people supporting his candidacy include Democrats backing all three top contenders for the nomination, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy and Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

A McCarthy agent put it more succinctly: "If Hughes comes out for Bobby our kids in Iowa will go after him."

Hughes evidently is not alone in that situation. His Democratic gubernatorial colleagues, feeling the pressure for presidential commitments and hoping to ease it, were generally delighted to adopt a statement in St. Louis promising decisions of conscience on the White House contest—but not right now.

Similarly, Republican governors in June 1967 advocated that uncommitted delegations be sent to the GOP convention.

Texas Gov. John B. Connally and Calvin L. Rampton of Utah, both Johnson allies, were two of the men who asked that the Democratic governors meet in St. Louis earlier this month.

Behind their request, it appeared, was a concern that with President Johnson out of the race, there might be a gubernatorial rush to the Kennedy camp. Administration loyalists wanted to slow things down and insure that Humphrey support was not foreclosed even before he announced his candidacy.

But there was no rush to Kennedy.

A small minority of the 26 Republican governors has been trying to line up presidential commitments among their colleagues almost since 1964, with an identical lack of success.

Like the Democrats, the Republican governors have consistently denied they are out to stop anybody in the presidential race. In their case, anybody means Richard M. Nixon.

So far, the governors have been true to their statement. They haven't slowed down the Nixon drive, and they haven't started one for anybody else.

DOCTOR'S MAILBAG

Soothing Preparations Will Relieve Dermatitis

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q — What causes dermatitis and how does it develop? How can I get rid of it?

A — There are several kinds of dermatitis or inflammatory skin disease. The commonest are eczema or allergic dermatitis and contact dermatitis. Most forms of dermatitis start with redness of the skin and itching or burning. As the disease progresses, papules and blisters may develop. Scratching may cause crusting and, if the disease becomes chronic, the skin may become thick and scaly. Common causes of contact dermatitis are exposure to poison ivy and other irritating plants, and various dyes, tars and oils used in industry. Many cases of dermatitis are kept going by overtreatment, applying irritating home remedies or excessive washing with soap and water. In addition to finding and avoiding the cause, a soothing preparation, such as Lassar's paste, or an anti-inflammatory product, such as hydrocortisone cream, are used to relieve symptoms and permit healing.

Q — What is dermatitis herpetiformis? How does it affect a person? What causes it and is there any cure?

A — The cause of this chronic skin eruption, characterized by grouping of the lesions, is unknown. It may, however, be aggravated by eating iodized salt, chocolate, nuts, fish and pork or by taking bromides. In some victims, the lesions are accompanied by general peppiness and a low fever. They may clear up spontaneously, only to return later. Various drugs, including sulfoxone and sulfapyridine (both prescription drugs), may be beneficial. They control, rather than cure, the disease.

Q — My doctor prescribed Meti Derm Cream for a rash under my arms and on my chest. How effective is it? Would it have any bad side effects?

A — This preparation is very effective in relieving acute inflammations of the skin. Side effects are rare but it should not be used to treat tuberculous skin lesions, ringworm, chickenpox or other viral skin diseases.

Awarded a Scholarship For Latin Proficiency

Fred Blum, a senior at Smith-Cotton High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. John Blum, Jr., has been awarded a

Fred Blum

$300 scholarship from the Classical Association of the Middle West and South, John C. Allen, Smith-Cotton Latin instructor, has announced.

The award, which is given to nine high school seniors in the Midwest and South, may be used at any college or university teaching classical languages. According to Prof. Paul R. Murphy of Ohio University, secretary-treasurer of the Classical Association, the only stipulation is that the recipient must continue the study of Latin or Greek during his first year of college.

The scholarship is based on a competitive translation examination in which the contestants were required to translate two passages from Virgil and Cicero without vocabulary or dictionary aids. Though Fred is presently a student of Latin II, the translation passages were of Latin IV level in difficulty. Usually, students below the Latin IV level do not attempt the examination; however, Fred has demonstrated his language skill in the past as he has been awarded the Gold Key in Latin I from Smith-Cotton; in 1967, he won first place in the Latin I grammar contest at the Missouri Junior Classical League Convention, and in 1968 he secured first place in the Latin II division of the convention competition. Perhaps his most outstanding accomplishment was the winning of first place in Latin I grammar at the National Junior Classical League Convention last summer.

Besides serving as vice-president of the Smith-Cotton Latin Club, Fred is a member of the Student Council, the National Honor Society, and plays on the S-C varsity golf team.

Planning to enter the University of Missouri in the fall, Fred will continue his study of Latin in preparation for a medical career.

'Bonanza' Star Is On Rise

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For eight seasons, the Cartwright family ruled NBC's "Bonanza" range, and then, this year, a football player-turned-actor moved onto the Ponderosa. And David Canary has done so well that he will return next season, rewarded by having at least two shows written around his character of Candy.

Canary, a 29-year-old six-footer with a nose shaped by an over-enthusiastic tackle on some forgotten five-yard line, is happy to be regularly employed in the long-playing, popular series, but quite without personal conceit, figures that he is making his own important contribution to the program.

"By adding the character of Candy, a whole new dimension has been possible," the actor explained. "He can certainly open the door on some new plot since he is associated with the Cartwrights but not one of them. Stories can be developed around his relationships to them—he can even be in conflict with them—and his relationships with others."

When "Bonanza" was born nine years ago, the father, Ben, had three sons, Adam, Hoss and Little Joe. Before two seasons had passed, there had been stories written with flashbacks that told of Ben's three marriages and the births of the sons from each. After a few seasons on horseback, Pernel Roberts who played Adam, became restless and pulled out of the show. After that Lorne Greene, Dan Blocker and Michael Landon carried the show. But nine years is a long time, so a little change was welcome.

Canary, who was born in Indiana and grew up in Ohio, was a voice major at the University of Cincinnati and turned down professional football offers to study voice in New York.

He played in three Broadway shows and got his first TV assignment when he was playing in "The Fantasticks" in Los Angeles. This was a six-month part in "Peyton Place." That, in turn led to the movie, "Hombre." "Bonanza" producer David Dortort looked at the film—he was interested in Cameron Mitchell's performance because he was casting "High Chaparral"—spotted Canary and added him to the cast of the established series.

David's unusual last name is a corruption of "McHenerie," and he has remote family connections with the legendary Calamity Jane. The young actor and his wife, former actress Julie Anderson, were in New York where David was plugging a new record album, going to the theater and visiting people and places they knew during the lean days when, as a newly married couple, they were struggling to make ends meet.

Deficit Cut Programs Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is running into trouble in its efforts to cut the international dollar drain this year by $3 billion.

Some government officials have already conceded privately the goal in some areas of the program will be extremely difficult, if not impossible, to meet.

But perhaps the sourest note in the entire picture is the deteriorating trade position which officials blame on inflation at home, strikes and the threat of strikes and what they call excessive wage settlements.

The net result is a sharp rise in imports and a decline in the trade surplus.

President Johnson unveiled his new balance-of-payments program on New Year's Day in a fresh attempt to lick a perennial problem which produced a $3.57 billion deficit in 1967.

Although exact figures won't be available until mid-May, officials now look for substantial improvement in the deficit for the first three months of this year compared with the last three months of 1967.

But the deficit in the prior quarter was $1.85 billion and there's reportedly little chance it will drop to the quarterly level prevailing before devaluation of the British pound last November.

The quarterly drain during the first three quarters of last year ranged from $533 million to $638 million.

Johnson's new program called for congressional action on a variety of fronts but Congress has yet to complete work on even one of them.

Passage of the proposed 10 per cent income tax surcharge is the keystone of the entire program.

The House approved extension of the 5 per cent excise tax on airline tickets for international travel but deferred action on the major part of the travel program—a proposed tax on spending by U.S. tourists in other countries.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: At the moment I am so mad I could chew thumb tacks.

Our son is in Vietnam. He writes once, sometimes twice a week. The mail is very important to my husband and me. We live for it. The woman next door is an attractive brunette with a very friendly manner. She is especially friendly to the postman. I am so eager to get the mail these days I stand on the front porch waiting. For the past two weeks the postman has been going into this woman's house for a cup of coffee. I have tapped my toe for as long as 15 minutes waiting for him to come out. Yesterday he was in there for 20 minutes.

Should I telephone the Post Office and report him? (I hate to be a troublemaker.) Or should I knock on the woman's door and ask the postman for my mail? It is not my business how long he sits there. All I want is a letter from my son. — NEEDLES AND PINS

Dear N & P: If you don't want to be a troublemaker, grab the mailman BEFORE he goes into the neighbor's house for his cup of coffee.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 16 who thinks you are the grooviest. I need your help and I hope you'll come through.

My problem is acne. At first it was just a few pimples but now my face and neck are covered. My mother says it is part of growing up and I shouldn't let it bother me. She keeps telling me time will take care of it. For over a year I have been self-conscious and miserable. How much longer should it take?

I have tried laying off certain foods but it hasn't helped. I bought medicines I saw advertised and they haven't done me any good. We don't have a lot of money for doctors so please don't suggest treatments.

Should I keep trying the medicines in hopes something will help or should I be patient and hope time will take care of it? Do you know of any cure? — THE NEW ORLEANS MESS

Dear New Orleans: There is no sure cure for acne. A treatment that works wonders for one person might prove totally worthless for another.

Go to a doctor. You don't need "a lot of money." You will spend less with a good doctor than if you continue to buy worthless concoctions and treat yourself. Special lamp treatments (in the physician's office of course) have helped thousands of kids just like you. Please make an appointment today.

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you attributed to St. Paul the statement: "It is not good for man to be alone."

I have heard of robbing Peter to pay Paul, but you, dear lady, are robbing God. The statement was made by Him in Genesis 2:18.

I don't believe God would resent your faulty attribution but I do feel you should keep the record straight in the interest of accuracy. — YOUR FRIENDLY PASTOR J.J.W. OF K.A.M.

Dear Friendly Pastor: Thank you for calling this gross error to my attention. I have before me over 100 letters from other readers who caught the mistake. What a joy to know my column is read by keen observers who are obviously better versed in the Bible than I. Thanks to all of you who wrote. I'll take 10 lashes with an old prayer shawl.

When romantic glances turn to warm embraces is it love or chemistry? Send for the booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference," by Ann Landers. Enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 35 cents in coin with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Curt Flood Score Streak Ends, But Cardinals Win

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Curt Flood drove in five runs with three hits including a triple, but his scoring streak ended Wednesday at 12 games as St. Louis beat Cincinnati 7-0.

Flood had a chance in the bottom of the eighth to extend the streak. He lined a bunt to left center and streaked to third. He stopped and then tried to score but was flagged out.

"The coach held me up, but after (Leo) Cardenas handled the ball I thought I had a chance," Flood explained. "I figured he had to make a perfect throw to get me and he did."

"I ran because of the string," Flood added. "I knew it was at stake. When I swung that last time I was going for a home run, believe it or not. I don't usually go for home runs. The last time I hit one I went off-seven after that."

"I wanted the record (of 17 consecutive games) just for the heck of it," Flood went on. "It's not that big a deal. It just gets your name in the paper."

Heading To Divisional Leadership

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tulsa and Memphis State have head starts toward divisional championships in Missouri Valley conference baseball but four of the eight clubs have yet to play a league game.

Tulsa has a 3-0 won-lost record in Valley play to lead the western division. All three victories were over Drake in the only league games played in the division. Wichita and St. Louis meet Friday and Saturday in St. Louis in their first league games.

In the east, Memphis State is 2-0, both over Cincinnati's defending Valley champions at Cincy. Bradley and Louisville open their league schedules this weekend, with Bradley at Memphis State for a three-game set and Cincy at Louisville for three.

The champions of the two divisions will meet in a best-of-three series to determine the Valley champion. The series will be at the home of the eastern winner this time. The likely dates are May 17-18. Cincy beat St. Louis two of three last year.

The Valley champion will go into the NCAA fifth district playoffs against the Big Eight titlist, with the district champion advancing to the NCAA College World Series at Omaha in mid-June.

In all games, Tulsa won 14 of its first 15, hit 330 as a team, outscored its opponents 106-31, cracked 12 home runs and stole 53 bases. Tulsa's top man is versatile Bob Murphy, 6-foot-4, 212-pound honor student who is batting .417 with 25 runs batted in.

Memphis State has good talent and depth, plus pitching led by veteran John Ross, who was 4-0 in his club's 10-5 start. This included two victories over Kansas State, a top Big Eight contender.

Perennially strong St. Louis was off to a 9-3 start in non-league games, Cincy 8-8, Bradley 6-4, and Wichita 11-6, almost entirely against small colleges in Kansas and Nebraska.

Open Net Tourney In Quarter Finals

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP)—The world's first open tennis tournament entered the quarter-final stage today with the barriers between professionals and amateurs fast breaking down.

Six men out of the last eight in the British Hard Courts Championships were pros, but one famous professional—Panchito Gonzales of Los Angeles—was out, humbled by 24-year-old British amateur Mark Cox.

The defeat of Gonzales Wednesday exposed the possible weakness of the pros. They are out of touch with hard courts and they are not used to playing five-set matches.

Gonzales, who is almost 40, said his last five-setter was against Ken Rosewall of Australia in Paris in 1963.

Cincinnati Manager Dave Bristol said the only way to get Flood out is to "make good pitches."

"Curt Flood works at being a good hitter," Bristol commented. "He wears out that pitching machine in spring training. And when the Cardinal pitchers warm up, he stands out there and watches them."

"It must be doing him some good," Bristol added. The Cardinal centerfielder is hitting over .400.

"That's right I do," Flood said in reply to Bristol's comments. "But I didn't think anybody noticed. I watch where the ball is coming from. When I start losing the pitches, that throws me into a slump. I work on my concentration."

"And on home stands I take extra batting practice at least every other day, no matter how poorly or how well I'm doing," Flood added. Thank God for (catcher Dave) Ricketts. He must throw about 75 extra balls to me. All he can throw is sliders, but sliders is what they generally get me out with."

"There are very few guys that hit over .300 consistently, and Stan Musial is one of them," Flood continued. "He says you have to always work at it. You just can't assume you're going to hit .300."

Catcher Tim McCarver and winning pitcher Ray Washburn

Scrapping To Gain Foothold

NEW YORK (AP)—When Hector Torres pitched the Monterrey team to the Little League World Series title at Williamsport, Pa. in 1958 he won instant fame in two nations.

Mexico was astir with excitement about the feats of the 12-year-old pitcher and the kids from Monterrey. The New York Yankees hosted the team at Yankee Stadium. President Eisenhower congratulated them and television spread their fame far and wide.

Few people realize that this same Hector Torres now is the rookie shortstop of the Houston Astros, scrapping to establish a foot hold in the major leagues. In the intervening years, Hector has been the property of the San Francisco Giants, the California Angels and now the Astros.

Houston traded Sonny Jackson, its regular shortstop, to Atlanta last winter and decided to go the route with Torres, despite a good-field-no hit label.

In the first few games, Torres led the Astros at bat but the pitchers have begun to catch up with him and he is down to .268, still considerably above his lifetime .216 for six years in the minors.

"I feel more pressure now than I did 10 years ago," said Torres on a visit to Shea Stadium. "After all, I was only 12 then and didn't know how much it all meant."

Hector is the son of Epitacio Torres, one of the celebrated great hitters of Mexican baseball. He played in Mexico and Cuba but didn't want to leave home to try it in the majors. It was the elder Torres who converted Hector from a pitcher to a shortstop after he returned from the Little League series.

Harry Walker, former Pittsburgh manager now a batting instructor with the Astros, said "He has a chance to be a great one. He gets rid of the ball quickly with an easy, fluid motion. He has good range and we think he can hit better than his record shows."

Hope for Comeback Up In The Air

BOSTON (AP)—Tony Conigliaro's hopes of a possible baseball comeback as a pitcher are up in the air at the moment.

Conigliaro told newsmen Wednesday that doctors have warned him not to undergo any heavy physical activity at this time because it might detach the retina of his injured left eye. He indicated that this put a question mark on his thoughts of trying to return to baseball as a pitcher.

Tony C. was injured last Aug. 18 when hit high on the cheekbone by a pitch by Jack Hamilton of the California Angels.

both agreed Washburn didn't have his best stuff.

"But it was a beautiful job of pitching," McCarver added. "He was hitting the spots really well. The last three innings he tired, but he was still hitting those spots."

"I pitched better this time," the two-game winner agreed, "but I had better stuff the last time I started against Cincinnati. Of course when you have seven runs and a bigger park, you can pitch a little differently."

John Tsitouris suffered his third loss without a victory.

St. Louis is off today and then entreaties Pittsburgh Friday. Probable pitchers are Bob Gib-

Jerry West, Baylor Lead LA Lakers

BOSTON (AP)—Jerry West and Elgin Baylor led the Los Angeles Lakers to their equalizing victory over the Boston Celtics, but both coaches agree the key to the game came when these two old pros were on the bench.

"Those 'red shirts' did a hell of a job," Laker Coach Bill Van Breda Kolff said of the makeshift quintet which kept Boston at bay late in the third period and early in the fourth.

Los Angeles led 80-69 when Baylor went to the bench after drawing his fifth personal foul with 4:02 remaining in the third period. A few minutes later West also sat down for a needed rest, but the Lakers held on for a 123-113 victory to square their best-of-7 National Basketball Association championship series at one win apiece.

"It was a calculated risk, keeping them both on the bench," Van Breda Kolff said, "but Elgin was in foul trouble and Jerry was dragging."

Tom Hawkins and Archie Clark were the only starters in the five-man group which did the job. Joining them were reserves Erwin Mueller, Mel Counts and Fred Crawford.

The scene now shifts to Los Angeles for the third game Friday night and the fourth Sunday night.

In the American Basketball Association, New Orleans, the Western Division winner, took a 2-1 lead over Eastern Division champion Pittsburgh with a 109-101 victory at home.

Red Robbins sparked New Orleans with 30 points while Chico Vaughn topped Pittsburgh with 27 points.

New Orleans will try to take its third straight tonight on home grounds before going to Pittsburgh Saturday night for the fifth game.

Negroes Laud Elevation Of Jim Padgett

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Negro athletes, who threatened to boycott all sports at the University of California, today are praising the elevation of freshman coach Jim Padgett to head basketball coach and appointment of Negro Earl Robinson as his assistant.

But they reserved judgment on the football situation, where they had demanded in their eight-point ultimatum the discharge of two coaching aides, Bill Button and Joe Marvin.

Bobby Smith, spokesman for the black athletes group of 40 when their demands were made in mid-basketball season, said, "I was very glad to hear" of the coaching appointments.

Padgett succeeds Rene Herreras, who resigned with one year to go on his contract. The Negroes had demanded Herreras' ouster.

Robinson succeeds Padgett, moving to California from Laney College in nearby Oakland.

Bob Presley, sophomore basketball star center who was suspended and quickly reinstated last January by Herreras, said he was elated at the change.

Presley's reinstatement precipitated a walkout of white basketball players. They said Herreras had been ordered by the administration to lift the suspension.

Black athletes retaliated with their ultimatum.

Many Uncashed Winning Tickets In 40 Years

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Jim Filburn has some teeth-grinding news.

A kitty worth at least $10,000 awaits untold hundreds who've never cashed in their winning Kentucky Derby tickets for the past 40 years.

It might be more, says Filburn, director of mutuels at Churchill Downs, but the voluminous track records stop short at 1928.

Uncashed tickets are good forever in Kentucky, even though the track turns over the unclaimed property to the state every two years.

"Late ticket claimers get reimbursed immediately from a small pool we keep on hand for such purposes and, if we need to, we can go to the state for more," Filburn said Wednesday.

Who'd walk away from the famed twin steeples forgetting to claim part of the $1.5 million-plus which is bet on that once-a-year day?

Once-a-year bettors, Filburn says.

The first Saturday in May, Derby Day, always ends with the highest rate of uncashed tickets of any day in all race-dome, he says.

Records for 1967 show there's $2,195.40 worth of uncashed tickets still out on Derby victor Proud Clarion, $2,077.20 on place horse Barbs Delight and $1,331.10 on Damascus, who showed.

Filburn offers a few clues. "Don't drop your tickets," he says. "Put them in your wallet or purse."

"Don't forget you can still win and collect if you bet to place or show and your horse wins."

Running Back Inks Letter of Intent

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP)—Vince O'Neal, a running back from Plainfield, N.J., has signed a Big Eight football letter of intent to enroll this fall at Kansas State, a Wildcat spokesman said Wednesday.

O'Neal, 6-foot-1 and 207 pounds, rushed for 1,060 yards last season, scoring 90 points. He runs the 100-yard dash in 9.7 seconds and also competes in the hurdles.

Little Bruiser is Treated

Little Bruiser, one of the five midgets who "tangled" in a battle royal during the wrestling matches Tuesday night, is shown in the emergency room at the Bothwell Hospital awaiting the arrival of a doctor. Bruiser split his head open when he went over the top rope of the ring and fell to the hardwood floor of Convention Hall at Liberty Park. Dr. Stanley Fisher, who treated Little Bruiser, had to take ten stitches to close the wound. Mrs. Marie Gilmore, nurse, is shown holding a compress to the injury while Joe A. Toler, chairman of the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, wrestling committee, (center) and Deputy Sheriff Orval C. Lewis look on. Lewis and Toler took the little wrestler to the hospital. Cleveland Ends Detroit Streak

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer Steve Hargan was twice as good as Clyde Wright and neither was very good for the batting averages of the Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators.

Hargan hurled a brilliant one-hitter Wednesday night as Cleveland ended Detroit's nine-game winning streak 2-0. A couple of hours later, Wright gave up two hits, pitching California to a 6-1 victory over Washington.

In other American League games, Baltimore ripped Minnesota 7-3 and Oakland tripped New York 4-3 in 11 innings.

In the National League, Pittsburgh shaded Los Angeles 4-3 and St. Louis tagged Cincinnati 7-0. San Francisco at Philadelphia, Houston at New York and Atlanta at Chicago all were postponed by rain.

Hargan faced only 28 batters, permitting just two walks and Jim Northrup's leadoff single in the third. He struck out seven Tigers, who hadn't lost since opening day. He also scored Cleveland's second run of the game when left fielder Willie Horton and shortstop Ray Oyler collided under his pop fly in the seventh inning and the ball fell for a triple. Leon Wagner's pinch single drove in the run.

Horton was carried off the field on a stretcher and preliminary examination showed he had suffered a concussion. He was taken to Shaker Medical Center for further examinations.

Wright didn't look like he'd survive the first inning against the Senators. He walked the leadoff batter, surrendered a single to Hank Allen and then walked the next two hitters, forcing in a run.

But then, with the bases still loaded and none out, he struck out the side and then allowed just two more runners the rest of the way.

Home runs by Roger Repoz and Paul Schaal gave the Angels the lead and then Schaal and Bob Rodgers each singled home two more runs in the late innings to wrap it up.

Baltimore pitcher Jim Hardin unloaded a two-run triple tying the game and then Dave May's double drove him in with the lead run as the Orioles battered Dean Chance and beat the Twins.

But Baltimore needed a lucky bounce to escape a sixth inning jam. The bases were loaded with two out when reliever Eddie Watt uncorked a pitch that sailed over the head of Cesar Tovar, the Minnesota batter.

Ted Uhlaender, the runner at third, started jogging home. But the ball took a hard carom off the concrete backstop and bounced right back to catcher

Elrod Hendricks, who tagged Uhlaender out, ending the threat.

The Athletics nipped the Yankees in the 11th inning when John Donaldson's two-out single delivered Bert Campaneris.

Oakland had tied the game in the sixth when Sal Bando drew a bases-loaded walk, wiping out a 3-2 Yankee lead built on Mickey Mantle's second home run of the season and Roy White's two-run single.

Campaneris walked opening the 11th and came around on a walk to Reggie Jackson, a stolen base and Donaldson's hit.

Difficult To Name Favorite

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The fact that 13 players have won the 15 tournaments this year on the PGA tour indicates why it is so difficult to establish a favorite in the $100,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic starting today over the 7,086-yard Preston Trail course.

Ten of those fellows are here but they are looked upon as are about 20 others. Don January, the Dallas native who won the Tournament of Champions last week and is playing well, is considered little more than another in the pack. This despite the fact that he has played the course quite often.

The uncertainty of golf at this time, plus the fact that the field for the Nelson Classic is among the best ever gotten together, makes this tournament pretty wide open. Except that it has Jack Nicklaus, who hasn't won a tournament this year and which is quite out of character, championing at the bit.

Nicklaus has the big game necessary for tough Preston League games.

The 12-year veteran will retire from the Baltimore Colts to join the staff of Columbia Broadcasting System.

CBS announced Wednesday that Moore would join the eight team telecasting crew. Each team consists of two men. He will do an analysis of games.

There also are nine former champions of the Dallas tournament, these including January and Pott. Others are Sam Snead, who won it three times before he started fading; Julius Boros, Earl Steward, Billy Maxwell, Charles Coody, Roberto De Vincenzo and defending champion Bert Vancey.

Arnold Palmer is an attraction as usual but Arnie doesn't give the impression of one who's going to take the course in tow. He showed up with a hip ailment.

Green Ridge Shut Out By Tigers

The Smith-Cotton Tigers won over Green Ridge in their first round of the Sub District baseball tournament with a score of 8-0. Coach "Skip" Schulz said the team will play at 3:30 Thursday at the Liberty Park Baseball stadium.

The Tigers started the scoring off in the top of the fourth with Williams and Robertson grounding out. Boehne then doubled and was knocked in by Gerletz who singled. Neville then doubled bringing in Gerletz. Thomas then flied out to shortstop for the third out.

Pirtle started the top of the fifth with a triple. Nash got to first on a double. Nash came up with a error. A double steal was then made by Pirtle and Nash with Pirtle scoring. Dalton singled and again a double steal was executed by Nash and Dalton with Nash reaching home. Williams flied out bringing Robertson up who tripled knocking in Dalton. Boehne got on error of third baseman bringing in Robertson, and stole second and third. Gerletz struck out and Neville got a base on balls and Thomas grounded out to end the top of the fifth.

Again Pirtle started the top of the sixth with a triple, and Nash who singled brought him in home. Dalton got on by error of third baseman advancing Nash to second. Nash was then put out trying to advance to third. Williams got on by fielders choice but put Dalton out at second. Robertson then made the third out by flying out to right field.

The top of the second found Boehne grounding out and Crowder who came in for Gerletz struck out. Holmes who came in for Neville grounded out for the third out.

Green Ridge got their only hit with two outs and Crowder singled into left field but Dove then came up and grounded out.

Winning pitcher was Nash for S-C, and losing pitcher was Crawford for Green Ridge.

Eight Major Relay Races On Weekend

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Penn Relay officials are saying that Villanova could win five of the eight major relay races this weekend.

The 74th annual relay carnival will be run at Franklin Field Friday and Saturday with 751 schools — colleges, junior colleges, high schools and elementary schools — and 6,533 athletes entered at last count.

Villanova, the NCAA indoor track champion, is entered in every relay but the 440 and figures strongly in most. No team has ever won five relays in the history of the meet.

The competition will be strong. New York University, for instance, beat the Wildcats in the two-mile and four-mile relays at the Queens-Iona Relays last weekend and will be back for more.

Defeats Arkansas

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—The University of Missouri defeated Arkansas 5-4 in a dual tennis meet Wednesday.

The Missouri Tigers lost to Arkansas, 5-4, in Fayetteville earlier this season.

Made From Old Ties
By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—and Mrs. M. T.—The way I make a necktie quilt is to take an old sheet and cut into 12-inch squares. On each square place a large piece of a tie, diagonally across from one corner to another, and then use other pieces to fill in at each side of it. Press each finished block, trim the edges and sew together to cover the sheet or whatever is to be the base. I briar stitch all the seams onto the lining. You can call this a crazy quilt if you like.—BLANCHE

DEAR POLLY—To make a quilt with neckties, I cut off the large ends, press carefully (no knit ties) and applied them on to a large block of colored satin. These pointed ends are arranged to form circles that really look like dahlias. The size of the finished quilt. I take the small ends of the ties and cut in the forms of plates or fans to be applied on other quilts. The middle of each tie is also opened and made up in the old-fashioned log cabin pattern. When applying the flower designs I use a pretty embroidery stitch or just sew them down. I have done both and the quilts are beautiful.—IDA

DEAR POLLY—Rather than making a quilt out of old neckties I have just finished a throw to use on my divan. After ripping, washing and pressing the ties I use a 12-inch square of muslin as a base. Then I place the narrow end of a tie diagonally on the square. The exposed corners were filled in with smaller pieces making an old-fashioned crazy quilt pattern. Each piece on a block was finished with either cat stitch, blanket stitch or chain stitch. After the squares were finished I put four of them together with the points of the ties to the center which made a big block with a sort of X design. Mine had six big blocks measuring 48 by 72 inches and is lined with corduroy.—MRS. C. E. S.

Polly's Problem

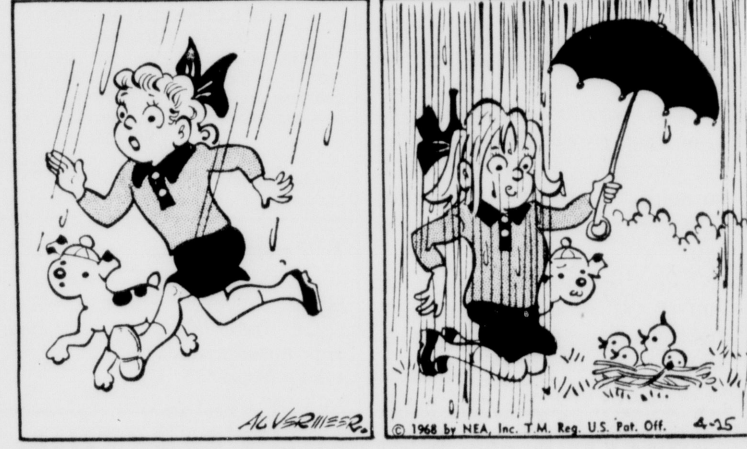

DEAR POLLY—I do hope some other mother can tell me how I can hold the top of my child's toy chest open so it does not fall down on his head. I have tried a hook but it pulls out of the wood. Please help me.—SUZANNE

Pirates Shade Dodgers 4-3

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Jim Bunning made it home safely after a cold night in Pittsburgh but Curt Flood was turned away at the gate after a hot time in St. Louis.

Bunning posted his first pitching victory at home as a Pirate Wednesday night, subduing the Los Angeles Dodgers 7-3 in frigid Forbes Field with late-inning relief help from Eloy Face.

Flood, the National League's hottest hitter, drove in five runs with two singles and a triple as the Cardinals slugged the Cincinnati Reds 7-0 — but failed to score for the first time in 13 games this year.

Three other scheduled NL games were postponed because of bad weather.

Cleveland upended Detroit 2-0, Baltimore beat Minnesota 7-3, Oakland tripped New York 4-3 in 11 innings and California trimmed Washington 6-1 in American League games.

Bunning, obtained by the Pirates in a winter trade with Philadelphia, yielded a three-run homer by Jim Lefebvre in the first inning and then blanked the Dodgers until the eighth, when he aggravated a pulled groin muscle and left the game.

The victory was Bunning's second of the young season against one set-back. He beat the Dodgers 3-0 at Los Angeles, then lost to San Francisco 5-2 at home last Saturday before Wednesday night's struggle, which began in 43 degree weather and ended with the thermometer at 38.

Gene Alley reached first on an error by Dodgers shortstop Zoilo Versalles in the sixth inning, moved around on Roberto Clemente's single and a ground out and scored the tie-breaking run on Bill Mazeroski's second sacrifice fly of the game.

"K-State has its momentum up," Bryan said going into the big series at Manhattan Friday and Saturday. "This has to be one of the most crucial series this year."

"We had our momentum going, having won nine of our last 10 games before we were rained out last week," Bryan said. "I hate to have to come back against such tough opposition as K-State after losing our edge."

"We're ready," Brasher said. "I think our momentum is up, and our attitude is good."

OSU has a perfect 6-0 record in quest of its third straight Big Eight crown. K-State and Missouri are tied for second at 6-2.

If you still consider pitching 70 per cent of the game, OSU has the edge, with a staff earned run average of 1.29 for league games. However, K-State's pitching is capable and the Wildcats lead the league in both home runs and stolen bases. K-State also is tops in team fielding at .970.

Pitching is the thing which worries Missouri Coach Hi Simmons before another big series with Oklahoma, 3-3, at Norman. Simmons can lead with Dick Henninger, 6-6 rookie with a 3.0 record, 0.79 ERA and just six walks compared to 27 strikeouts in 22 2-3 innings.

But after Henninger, it's a problem of finding a starter who can throw strikes. The bullpen is in good hands, with Jerry Hurt and Kelly Whitaker. And Mizou leads the league in team batting at .303.

In the other series Friday and Saturday, Iowa State, 1-7, plays at Kansas, 2-4, while Colorado, 1-5, is at Nebraska, 3-5.

The OSU-K-State series matches the league's two best hitters, with Danny Thompson, OSU shortstop, at .458, and Tom Wheeler, K-State second baseman, .438. Four others are over .400, with Mike Newton of Colorado .429, Dick Turner of Oklahoma .409, Bill Griffin of Missouri .497 and Bob McDaniel of Missouri .406.

OSU's Mike Camp is on top in ERA at 0.47 and gave the fewest walks. Bill Adams of Nebraska is next at 0.78. Then come Henninger, Ron Hall of Oklahoma at 1.58, Mick Logue of Nebraska 1.80, Bill Dobbs of OSU 1.93, Bill Maddux of Kansas 2.02 and K-State's Nick Horner 2.04. Horner's 4-0 record and 31 strikeouts in 22 innings both stand No. 1.

Coach Resigns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Arndt resigned Wednesday as basketball coach and athletic director at Los Angeles-Loyola.

The Pirates had pushed over three runs in the fourth, tying it 3-3. Alley tripled and scored on an infield out. Center fielder Willie Davis dropped Willie Stargell's long fly for a three-base error; Donn Clendenon walked and Mazeroski's first sacrifice fly sent home Stargell before Manny Mota's run-scoring single capped the rally.

Flood stroked a two-run single in the second inning, singled another run across in the sixth and lashed a two-run triple in the eighth as the Cardinals breezed to their third straight victory behind the five-hit pitching of Ray Washburn.

The St. Louis center fielder's run-scoring streak ended five games short of the National League record, set by Ted Kluszewski in 1954, when he was cut down at the plate trying to stretch his triple into an inside-the-park homer.

Flood had some consolation. The 3-for-5 night raised his league-leading batting average to .414.

Canadiens In Crucial Playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Montreal Canadiens tonight can become the first team in eight years to sweep two straight National Hockey League playoff series. The last time it brought them the Stanley Cup. This time, it will only get them a week's rest.

While the Canadiens try to wrap up their semifinal set against the Black Hawks in Chicago, the Minnesota North Stars take on the Blues in St. Louis. That best-of-7 expansion series is tied 1-1. The eventual winners will meet for the Stanley Cup.

"We're playing our best hockey of the season right now," said Montreal Coach Toe Blake, whose club eliminated Boston in four straight games and has taken the first three from Chicago.

"Superior bench strength is the big reason. And Jean Beliveau is playing his best Stanley Cup hockey for us since 1955, when he scored a dozen goals in 10 games."

Beliveau, the rangy center and captain of the Canadiens, is one of four holdovers from the 1960 team that breezed through Chicago and Toronto in eight games for Montreal's fifth straight Stanley Cup. He has scored seven goals in the same number of games in the current playoffs.

Coach Billy Reay of the Hawks thinks Montreal can be beaten.

"The way they are playing now, they're as good a team as the Canadiens have ever had," he said. "They have four lines and they just keep coming at you."

"But they can be beaten. All you've got to do is start with great goaltending and then play your best for 60 minutes."

Cortina, just $40.23 a month ... isn't that sensible?

What makes Ford's Model C England's largest selling car? Simple! Cortina is sensible without being stodgy. It's built with the tradition of the Model "A" firmly in mind. It gets up to 30 miles per gallon, has an easy-to-clean all-vinyl interior, which by the way, seats a full-sized family very comfortably, and comes with wall-to-wall carpeting and a full safety package. Cortina also has an international rally-winning heritage. The GT engine packs 89hp. Front disc brakes are standard, as are 4-speed fully synchronized gearbox and front bucket seats. Come see Cortina. It's great no matter how you look at it!

Rate of Growth Is Top Factor in Stock Value

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — If you were to purchase all the shares of American Telephone, which has assets of $46.8 billion, and International Business Machines, which has assets of $5.6 billion, for which would you pay the most?
Since you suspect the answer isn't the seemingly obvious one, here are the straight facts, based on prices early this week: for IBM you would pay $36.7 billion, for AT&T $27.06 billion.
Stated another way, for a company with one-eighth the assets of AT&T you would pay between $9 billion and $10 billion more, an amount that would help solve the U.S. Treasury's problems.
The point is this: in the stock market it isn't how big you are that counts; it's how fast you're growing.
Naturally the situation is completely hypothetical. Even if you had that kind of cash you wouldn't be able to make such huge purchases. When word got out that you were in the market those prices would soar.
But this paradox in prices points up some of the psychology involved in today's stock market. What seems all important in the market, especially in the past few years, is a company's growth possibilities.

IBM is a swiftly growing outfit. Its earnings growth is at a rate of more than 14 per cent a year. Last year its profits rose $125 million to $651.5 million. With such a swift growth rate, buyers fight for a piece of the action.
As a result, a price-earnings ratio of about 50 is commonly placed on IBM shares. That means it sells for 40, 50 or 60 times its per share earnings, which in 1967 were $11.61. Its price at the opening Tuesday was $655.
AT&T once was in enormous demand also, but now it is a huge operation and growing steadily but slowly in comparison with some of the glamor companies.
Although in theory the purchasers of stock always are taking risks with their futures, this attitude becomes more pronounced during periods of sustained economic expansion, such as this nation has had for seven years.

During this time there also has been an outburst of new technology, the result of billions poured into research and development in the 1950s. Taking commercial advantage of these new products and methods, some companies have been transformed from small private enterprises into enormous, publicly held corporations.
Polaroid Corp. is often cited as an example of this. In 1955, when it already was well on its way, the photographics products company reported profits of $2.4 million. In 1967 profits were 24 times greater at $57.4 million.
Nevertheless, scores of very successful companies are larger than Polaroid by almost any measure — sales, number of employees, assets.
Based on share value, the most valuable firms today are IBM, AT&T, General Motors, Standard Oil (New Jersey), Eastman Kodak, Texaco, Sears, General Electric, Gulf and Du Pont.

Sees No Real Threat

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Federal Power Commission Chairman Lee C. White says the intimate interdependence of individuals in an increasingly complex society does not need to preclude individualism.

"Ambition, a sense of opportunity, individualism—these should be, not the casualty of recent trends, but the response," he said at the 40th honorees convocation at the University of Nebraska Tuesday.

The last of the big time spenders

That's us.

We spend eight hours to make each loaf of Colonial Bread. We take extra time to let the dough rise naturally. Extra time to twist each loaf by hand.

And more time to let the dough rest and relax. And while this may sound like we spend more time than we have to, we just have to. Or it wouldn't be Colonial Bread.

Why doesn't everybody make bread this way?
